Competition Format and Rules

Format et règlement des compétitions

Olympic Competition Format

The Olympic equestrian eventing discipline at the Olympic Games Paris 2024 comprises two separate events: the eventing team event and the eventing individual event. Eventing is made up of the following distinct tests: dressage, cross country and jumping. Each test takes place on consecutive days during which the athlete rides the same horse. The results of each test count towards both the eventing individual and the eventing team events. A team consists of three athlete/horse combinations. The team total points are the sum of the total points of the three athletes. After the three tests, eventing team medals are awarded. The 25 best placed athletes (including all athletes tied for 25th place), after the first jumping test qualify to participate in the jumping individual final. The final ranking of the individual athletes is determined by the combined points earned in all four tests (dressage, cross country, first jumping test, jumping individual final). The tests are as follows:

Dressage test

A set of compulsory movements evaluates the horse's obedience, flexibility and harmony with the athlete. Judges award marks for each movement. The total score is then converted into penalty points to which the jumping and/or time penalties of the cross country and jumping tests are added.

Cross country test

A cross country test consists of one test which each athlete/horse combination attempts to complete, within a prescribed length of time, without jumping errors. The cross country test will require up to 45 jumping efforts.

Phase	Distance	Speed	Time
	Metres (m)	Metres per minute (m/min)	Minutes (min)
Cross Country test	5000-5700	570	max10

The ground jury may reduce course distances, for example in the case of extreme weather conditions.

The height of fixed and solid cross country obstacles may not exceed 1.20m. The overall height of a natural hedge or brush fence may not exceed 1.40m.

Jumping test

This is the final stage of the eventing competition and requires athlete/horse combinations to jump 10 to 12 obstacles similar in nature to those found in the jumping event, though not as difficult. The test consists of a maximum of 15 jumping efforts and is designed to demonstrate that horses have retained their suppleness and correct training after the cross country test. The length of the course will be between approximately 500 and 600 metres. The required speed will be 375 metres per minute.

The first jumping test will determine the team classification and act as a qualifier for the individual final. The second jumping test is used to determine the individual classification. The 25 best placed athletes after the first jumping test, including those tied for 25th place, will participate in the second jumping test.

The final ranking in each event is based on the combined total of penalty points from all tests (three tests for the team event, four tests for the individual event). In the jumping test, the height of the jumps is limited to 1.25m in the first jumping test, and 1.30m in the second jumping test.

Horse inspections

The first and second horse inspections will exceptionally not be open to the public due to logistical and timetable constraints in Paris. In order to be eligible to compete in the event, a horse must undergo and pass two horse inspections, one on the day prior to the dressage test and a second inspection before the jumping test(s).

These two inspections are conducted by the ground jury and the veterinary delegate. In addition, there are two examinations performed by the veterinarian, the first on the arrival of the horse at the stables, the second after the athlete has completed the cross country test.

Differences between the FEI World Championships and the Olympic Games

At FEI World Championships, teams comprise four athlete/horse combinations, with the three best athlete scores being combined to give the team score. In the Olympic Games, teams comprise three athlete/horse combinations with all scores counting for the team score.

At the Olympic Games, an additional jumping phase will decide the final classification of the individual athletes.

Changes since the Olympic Games Tokyo 2020

Sport Rules and Procedures

Competition method

In the dressage test, marks awarded by the judges are converted into penalty points.

In the cross country test, penalties for faults at obstacles are added to penalties incurred for excess time.

In the first jumping test, penalties for faults at obstacles are added to penalties incurred for excess time.

In the second jumping test (for the 25 best placed athletes, including those tied for 25th place), penalties for faults at obstacles are added to penalties incurred for excess time.

Team

The team with the lowest total number of penalty points, after three tests, will be declared the winner.

Individual

The competitor with the lowest total number of penalty points, after four tests, will be declared the winner.

Tiebreak rules

Team

- In the event of a tie:
 1. The best combined highest three placings of the three members of each team in the individual ranking after the first jumping test will be added together,
 - with priority given to the team with the three same members completing all three tests without substitution
 - then the team with two members completing three tests without substitution
 - then the team with only one member completing the three tests without substitution
 2. In the event of equality between two or more teams with the same number of substitutions, the classification will be decided by the best combined highest placings of the combinations having completed all three tests (e.g. Team A with athletes ranked second, eighth and 12th (total 22) will be ranked above Team B with athletes ranked first, seventh and 15th (total 23)).
 3. If the tie remains, the classification will be decided by the best combined cross country score (including faults at obstacles, time penalties and other penalties incurred) of the combinations within each team having completed all three tests.
 4. If the tie remains, the classification will be decided by the best combined Team Jumping test score (including faults at obstacles, time penalties) of the combinations within each team having completed all three tests.
 5. If the tie remains, the classification will be decided by the best combined Dressage score of the combinations within each team having completed all three tests.
 6. If still equal, the ties shall be declared (sorted by NOC code).

Individual

- In the event of a tie, the classification will be decided as follows:
 1. Best overall cross country score
 2. Dressage highest positive points
 3. Cross country time closest to the optimum time
 4. Best individual final jumping score
 5. Best individual qualifier jumping score
 6. Best time (fastest) in the individual final jumping
 7. Best total of collective marks in the dressage test
 8. If still equal, the ties shall be declared (sorted by NOC code)

Disqualification rules

An athlete disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct will receive no rank and will be listed at the bottom of the individual ranking. If the athlete is part of a team in the team event, the team will also be disqualified.

Protests/appeals

The NOCs may protest or appeal according to the FEI rules.

Note:

A team competitor that fails to complete one of the tests (WD, RT or EL) will receive fixed penalty points for that test (100 for Dressage and Jumping, 200 for Cross Country). If the competitor is able to take part in the remaining test(s) for the team there will be no further penalty; if a substitute competitor continues the remaining test(s) for the team, then the team will receive a further 20 point penalty.

* Rider No.5 JOHNER Melody (SUI), total penalties includes 2 points deducted from each judge's good marks

Note:

A team competitor that fails to complete one of the tests (WD, RT or EL) will receive fixed penalty points for that test (100 for Dressage and Jumping, 200 for Cross Country). If the competitor is able to take part in the remaining test(s) for the team there will be no further penalty; if a substitute competitor continues the remaining test(s) for the team, then the team will receive a further 20 point penalty.

Description of Obstacles

Description des obstacles

Obstacle 1 – The Olympic Crown

La Couronne Olympique

The first fence approach is slightly uphill, and there is enough distance from the starting box for a nice, forward, positive beginning. "Faster, higher, further - together"... with the horse!

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
1	1,12				2,30	2,20

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 2 – The Builders' Oxer
L'Oxer des Bâtisseurs

This oxer is made of massive poles and is frangible. Here again, with a smooth curve on approach, it will stretch the horses with a clear message: go on! The theme of this fence is a tribute to the skill of all woodworkers, including those who built these fences. It features two traditional hand tools and an apprenticeship symbol.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
2	1,18			1,75	2,40	3,60

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 3 – The Peacocks' Shelter
L'abri des Paons

The peacock shelter is situated in the "Peacock Allée." Maximum dimensions are used here, with a small chicane to create a fine perspective on the approach.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
3	1,18			1,75	2,70	4,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 4 – The Courtship of the Peacock
La Parade du Paon

This "ditch and brush" fence is here to say: this is cross-country. A very classic and always spectacular fence, especially in this environment with the grand canal in the background.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
4	1,07	1,40			2,50	4,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 5 ABC – The Ménagerie Pond

Le bassin de la ménagerie

A water jump at the fifth obstacle and a combination come quickly on the course. The terrain and the environment speak: the monumental fountain had to be used on such an occasion. Riders will need to motivate their horses and prevent them from being distracted. There are two different routes to allow the less confident to take more time between efforts.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
5A direct	1,05		1,68		1,60
5B direct	0,89	1,33		1,20	2,00	1,70
5A option	1,19				1,50	3,40
5BC option 1	0,92		1,55		1,50	3,80
5BC option 2	0,70	1,35
5C direct	1,01

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 6 AB – The Ménagerie Fountain
La Fontaine de la Ménagerie

On the direct route, after the jump into the water over an angled fence (The Mangrove) and a brush corner (The Nest), competitors will jump out of the water over a pontoon with two strides to a frangible skinny fountain. Alternatively, those taking the two trees (A & B) to the water will exit without any jump and will have two brushes on a curve.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
6AB direct	1,24				1,70	1,25
6A option	1,03				1,50	1,80
6B option	1,06				1,20	2,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 7 AB – The Ulysses' Companions
Les Compagnons d'Ulysse

The link between "La Ménagerie" and "La Sablière" is made by a step to an angled frangible birch log, with the possibility of taking a longer route to a similar but less demanding fence.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
7A	1,10					3,50
7B direct	1,19				1,65	1,80
7B option	1,16				1,70	2,20

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 8 – The Reading Corner
Le Salon de Lecture

Here, there is a choice between two similar brush fences to jump at speed. The "Reading Corner" is a "ride and jump" fence. Let's bet Marie-Antoinette would have love to seat here.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
8	1,1 / 1,11				2,00	3,05

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 9 – The Pastoral Enclosure
L'Enclos pastoral

This rustic open oxer (frangible), coming after a long gallop uphill, will help riders to regain control and balance before the next and second water jump.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
9	1,17			1,75	2,70	3,10

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 10 AB – The Vauban Citadelle
La Citadelle Vauban

A cluster of spectacular jumps with multiple routes: a stone-effect bridge leading to a narrow "V," then to one of four brush corners; or a simple ditch leading to angled brushes or a narrow brush oxer into the water, followed by one of these brush corners. Riders will need to be solid, reactive, and determined here. The famous Vauban, contemporary of Louis XIV, designed many fortresses around Europe with incredible geometric shapes that were his signature.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
10A direct	1,20			1,00	2,50	2,00
10A option					1,90
10B direct	0,85	1,16	1,45		1,85	1,50
10B option 1	0,60	1,05	1,50	1,70	1,00	1,70
10B option 2	0,85	0,92	1,45	1,70		1,50

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 11 – The Science Laboratory

Le Laboratoire des Sciences

After a lot of intensity, horses and riders need a bit of a "let-up jump" to catch their breath and rebuild their confidence, if needed. This table is related to the next fence (12) with a smooth curve to the left in 7 or 8 strides, or more, to encourage the competitor to focus on their horse's balance and rhythm instead of galloping flat.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
11	1,20			1,00	2,70	2,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 12 – The Enlightenment Bookcase

La Bibliothèque des Lumières

After a lot of intensity, horses and riders need a bit of a "let-up jump" to catch their breath and rebuild their confidence, if needed. This table is related to the next fence (12) with a smooth curve to the left in 7 or 8 strides, or more, to encourage the competitor to focus on their horse's balance and rhythm instead of galloping flat.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
12	1,18			1,65	2,70	2,70

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 13 AB – The Sailors' Workshop
L'Atelier des matelots

These two boat hulls, currently "under construction," are placed parallel but offset. Accuracy, concentration, and the appropriate pace will be key.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
13A	1,20				2,70	2,50
13B	1,18				2,70	2,50

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 14 – The Impressionists’ Guinguette
La Guinguette des Impressionnistes

A simple, massive picnic table of maximum dimensions, located on the approach to the first pontoon across the Grand Canal, will help riders gain control for a safe turn.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
14	1,20				2,70	2,50

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 15 – The Tiny Ditch
Le Petit Fossé

This natural ditch may look small, but the white limestone on the landing side will help riders read it properly. It also prepares them for the next element, requiring a positive, forward approach as they go uphill.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
15					2,80

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 16 ABCD – The Viewpoint over the Grand Canal

Le Belvédère du Grand Canal

A huge step-down to another ditch, followed by three strides to a skinny arrowhead brush, might create disorder for some competitors. They will need to be very solid, fast, elastic, and always in sync with their horse. Due to the combination of these typical cross-country elements, maintaining the correct line to the third jump, with riders always in command, will be essential.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
16A direct			2,00
16BC direct					3,00
16D direct		1,40			2,70	1,40
16A option			1,90
16B option		1,36			1,90	1,50
16CD option		1,39			2,20	1,50
16BCD option		1,35			1,90	1,50

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 17 AB – The « à la française » Garden
Le Jardin à la Française

Two large angled brush fences are positioned here for two reasons: to allow for a good gallop and to prevent a flat approach. Additionally, some "ride and jump" fences are included to help regain confidence if needed.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
17A	0,96	1,40			2,70	4,00
17B	0,98	1,40			2,70	4,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 18 – The Stag
Le Cerf

Will the horses be bothered by this "monstrous" fence? Not at all. It has an easy profile to negotiate with care, just like the others. Simple as that.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
18	1,20				2,70	2,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 19 – The Estovers Log Piles
Les Affouages

One of the challenges of designing in the Versailles park is the abundance of straight avenues. To prevent this cross-country course from resembling a steeplechase, we deliberately incorporated slight curves and relatively straightforward "ride and jump" fences.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
19	1,20				2,70	2,20

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 20 – The Estovers Log Piles
Les Affouages

These two log stacks look absolutely enormous, which is a good safety feature as it commands respect from both the horse and rider. However, these fences are very inviting and well within the permitted dimensions.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
20	1,20				2,70	2,20

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 21 ABC – The Whimsical Woods
Les Caprices de la Forêt

This last undergrowth section is the most naturally undulating part of the course. With a frangible vertical in front of a slope and big skinny brush log pimples, it tests the competitor's ability to read the fence correctly: balance, accuracy, and boldness are essential.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
21A direct	1,18				1,00	2,50
21A option	1,18				1,70	1,50
21B direct	1,02	1,40			2,20	1,40
21B option	1,17				1,10	2,00
21C	1,03	1,40			2,00	1,40

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 22 – The Traditional French Equestrian School
L'Équitation de Tradition Française

While galloping towards the last section of the course, competitors will have to negotiate this huge saddlery trunk. Nothing technically difficult, except that it come after a few strides going down hill. Attention !

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
22	1,17			1,40	2,50	3,00

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 23 ABCD – The Étoile Royale waters
Les Eaux de l'Étoile Royale

A large log must be jumped in the central petal, which consists of a water pond with a brush fence as its vein, to be cleared at a strong angle. Riders will then have the choice of either making a sharp turn to an open corner or taking a slightly longer route to another open corner. There is also a much longer route for those running low on "petrol" or wanting to complete this Olympic course: from the A element, they must jump a narrow vertical, make a 180° turn, and head towards an open corner. All B, C, and D elements are frangible.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
23A	1,16		1,50		2,48	9,00
23BC	0,90	1,35		1,40	2,60	3,00
23D direct	1,19			1,70	2,65	1,80
23D option	1,18			1,65	2,60	1,80
23B option	1,16				0,90	1,60

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 24 – The Hundred Steps Staircase
L'Escalier des Cent Marches

Horses will leap over this easy triple-bar profile fence (frangible) to reach the final combination of the course.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
24	1,20				2,70	3,50

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 25 AB – The Cornelian Dilemma
Le Choix Cornélien

With 26, two jumps with separate numbers present a critical question at this stage, conveying the message: you can chase the clock, but reasonably. Being in full control of your horse, which is still very fit at this point, is a priority. Agility, balance, and reactivity will be essential.

Number		Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
25 direct	0,90	1,40			2,00	1,40
25 option	0,93	1,35			1,50	1,45

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 26 – The Cornelian Dilemma
Le Choix Cornélien

With 25, two jumps with separate numbers present a critical question at this stage, conveying the message: you can chase the clock, but reasonably. Being in full control of your horse, which is still very fit at this point, is a priority. Agility, balance, and reactivity will be essential.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
26 direct	0,90	1,40			2,00	1,20
26 option	0,97	1,27			1,60	1,60

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 27 – Los Angeles 2028
Los Angeles 2028

This frangible fence does not require a very big jump but demands respect and controlled speed. As a nod to the next Olympic Games, it symbolizes a passing of the torch and is inspired by the iconic Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
27	1,18				1,60	2,10

All measures are in meters

Obstacle 28 – Liberté, Égalité, Fraternité
Liberté, Égalité, Fraternité

In reference to the French motto, the last fence of this Olympic course will appear a bit more imposing as it is positioned on top of a small mound. The small bushes on the final approach should also help horses and riders read the fence more effectively.

Number	Height	Height of hedge	Drop	Top spread	Base spread	Jumpable width
28	1,19				2,40	3,60

Description of Fences

Description des obstacles

Fence 1 – Tokyo Enso Blue and black

Ensō (circle) is one of the most common subjects of Japanese calligraphy, even though it is a symbol and not a character. You may hear it called the Circle of Enlightenment, the Enso Circle, the Infinity Circle and even the Lost Symbol of Reiki. If you actually took the meanings of the two Kanji symbols that make up the word, ensō would translate as Mutual Circle or Circle of Togetherness.

The ensō is a universal symbol of wholeness and completion; “form is void and void is form.” When viewing ensō, one can see that that form and void are interdependent and, in fact, define each other. With so many definitions available, each of us is truly left with the responsibility to select or create our own definition of ensō.

Fence 2 – Versailles
Green and beige

The "jardins à la française" are French gardens designed in the 17th and 18th centuries, known for their rigorous symmetry, raised flowerbeds with intricate geometric designs, and a combination of architectural and landscape elements. These gardens reflect the influence of classical art and Italian Renaissance architecture, noted for their elegance and order. Characterized by central axes, linear perspectives, statuary, and symbolic elements, French gardens are at estament to the sophistication and aesthetic refinement that defined the era.

A paradigmatic example of this style is the Garden of Versailles, created by André Le Nôtre for the Palace of Versailles during the reign of Louis XIV. This iconic garden, with its tree-lined avenues, elaborate parterres and allegorical symbolism, has left a lasting mark on garden design worldwide, influencing contemporary appreciation of formal beauty and landscape planning.

Fence 3 – New Pictogramms
Blue and pink

Seeking to avoid conventional representations of each sport the pictograms designed for Paris2024 take the form of a "coat of arms", serving as a distinctive symbol or each discipline.

These eye-catching designs incorporate three fundamental graphic elements:

An Xshaped axis of symmetry, a representation of the field of play and specific elements that characterize each sport. The designers worked closely with the international federations, ensuring precision down to the smallest details of the various pictograms. This evolution aims to generate a more emotive symbol, transcending the mere visual representation of the sport. In total, 62 "badges" have been created to cover the various Olympic and Paralympic disciplines.

The introduction of pictograms to illustrate each sport dates back to the Tokyo 1964 Olympic Games, while the first pictograms for the Paralympic Games appeared for the first time in Barcelona 1992. The previous edition already sought to innovate in this respect, incorporating the first ever animated icons designed by Masaaki Hiromura. This continuous effort to evolve pictograms highlights the importance of these visual symbols in the dynamic and emotive representation of sports in Olympic and Paralympic events.

Fence 4 – Colonne Morris
Blue and yellow

The classic advertising columns found in the streets of Paris and in some other cities of France, take their name from the French painter and typographer Gabriel Morris, who introduced them in Paris after obtaining the concession in 1868 in order to advertise the many shows that began to emerge in the city in the Second Empire. Configured in the same style as the kiosks in the form of a cylinder of cast iron in dark green, with a canopy in the form of a canopy, under a small dome decorated with scales, to protect the posters from the rain.

Maison Morris took over the monopoly of the advertising columns, covering the costs of their construction and of the posters, dedicated to cultural programming, although these structures were invented in Germany by Ernst Litfass, and used for public announcements in 1854.

Although advertising columns have evolved and diversified over time, the term "Colonne Morris" is still commonly used to refer to these structures. In addition to their advertising function, to promote events, films, shows and other items of public interest, Morris'columns are also considered iconic elements of the Parisian city scape, contributing to the distinctive character of the city.

Fence 5a – Folies de la Villette
Red and white

"Les Folies de la Villette" belong to the Parc de la Villette, a large urban park located in the north east of Paris, France. This park is known for being one of the largest in the city and for hosting a variety of cultural, architectural and leisure facilities.

Parc de la Villette stands out for its contemporary approach to integrating art, architecture and cultural activities in an open-air setting, and is a frequently used venue for events and festivals throughout the year.

With in the Parc de la Villette are "Les Folies", a series of remarkable architectural structures designed by architect Bernard Tschumi. These "folies" are buildings of various shapes and functions that serve as stages, pavilions, and other spaces for cultural and recreational events.

Some of the most notable "folies" include the "Grande Halle" (Great Hall), an iron and glass structure that was formerly a cattle market and is now used for events and exhibitions. Other "folies" are used to host artistic, the theatrical and music activities. In addition, the park has large green areas, canals, and playgrounds, making it a popular place for Parisians and visitors alike.

Fence 7 – Rue de Paris
Blue, grey and green

In Paris, as in most cities, the urban signs indicating the name of the streets are placed at the end of the roads, usually on the facades. The design of the current plaques was ordered by the Count of Rambuteau in 1847 and is one of the oldest in the world. They are distinguished by their rectangular shape in navy blue enamelled metal with a green border and white inscription.

At the top of the plaque, in a semicircle is marked the number of the 'arrondissement' or neighbourhood, from 1 to 20. And as an example of cultural city, on many occasions, they indicate a brief description of the character, event or place that they name.

Such is its connection with the cliché image of Paris that there are companies that reproduce personalized plaques as souvenirs.

Fence 8 – Pont du Gard
Beige

Built around 50 CE, during the reigns of the emperors Claudius and Nero, the aqueduct of which the Pont du Gard is a part, supplied the city of Nîmes with large quantities of pressurised water for over five centuries. The Roman city, known as "Nemausus" at the time, was undergoing significant urban development during the 1st century that the construction of an aqueduct was decided, in keeping with the example of Rome, as capital and model for the entire Roman Empire. This achievement gave the city (which had a population of 20,000 at the time) a high degree of prestige: fountains, spa, running water in the residences of the wealthy, and clean streets all contributed to a sense of urban well-being. With an average descent of 25 cm per kilometre, one of the lowest ever achieved at the time, the aqueduct gravity fed 30,000 to 40,000 cubic metres of fresh water from springs located in Uzès to Nîmes, thus covering a distance of 50 kilometres.

At the beginning of the 6th century, when the region was dominated by the Franks and the Visigoths, the Pont du Gard was finally abandoned and its structures came to be used as quarries for building materials. From the Middle Ages onwards the monument fulfilled many different functions with little to do with its original design it a source of inspiration for many Renaissance artists.

Built on three levels, the Pont is 49 m (161 ft) high above the river at low water and 274 m (899 ft) long. Its width varies from 9 m (30 ft) at the bottom to 3 m (9.8 ft) at the top.[21] The three levels of arches are recessed, with the main piers in line one above another. The span of the arches varies slightly, as each was constructed independently to provide flexibility to protect against subsidence. Each level has a differing number of arches.

Fence 9 – Pont Alexandre
Grey

The Alexandre III Bridge, built in 1900 for the Universal Exposition in Paris, stands out as one of the most elegant and ornate bridges in the city. Named in honor of the Russian Tsar Alexander III, who died in 1894, so he could not get to know the bridge, and it was his son, Tsar Nicholas II who laid the foundation stone of the bridge in 1896. The bridge symbolizes the union in the Franco-Russian alliance and stands as a historical and artistic monument. Its Art Nouveau design includes elaborately decorated bronze lanterns, golden Pegasus statues and other ornamentation that contribute to its unique aesthetics. This bridge is not only a convenient crossing over the Seine River, but also a special place that offers panoramic views of Paris, including the Eiffel Tower and the Invalides.

The Alexandre III Bridge not only serves as an important link between the Champs Elysees and the Grand Palais, but also represents an architectural landmark commemorating the friendship between nations. The statues of Pegasus at the ends of the bridge, along with the intricate decorations and details, contribute to its grandeur and historical significance. This bridge remains an essential landmark in Paris, where engineering combines with artistic elegance to create a visual and cultural experience, now considered a World Heritage Site, with in the Seine River banks ensemble.

Fence 10 – Toulouse Lautrec
Red

Henri de Toulouse Lautrec, a prominent French painter and poster artist of the late 19th century, born on November 24, 1864, in Albi, France, and died on September 9, 1901, left a lasting mark on the world of art and culture.

His work is characterized by capturing the bohemian life and night life of Paris during the Belle Époque, a time of relative peace and prosperity in Europe between the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He was particularly noted for his depictions of cabarets, theaters and brothels, with the Moulin Rouge being one of the most iconic places immortalized in his works.

Toulouse-Lautrec was known for his style, which combined vibrant colors and expressive lines. In addition to his artistic skill, he also excelled as a poster artist, depicting advertising posters that have become iconic works of art of the time.

Despite his short life, his artistic legacy has endured, and Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec has had a great influence on the development of modern art, especially in the field of poster art and the representation of urban life.

Fence 11 – Cabines de plages
Multiple colors

The history of beach cabins is closely linked to the history of sea bathing, which started to become fashionable in the 19th century. These wooden (or cloth) cabins were at first mobile, placed on top of horse-drawn carts. Their purpose was to allow bathers to change without being seen, to store deck chairs, umbrellas, towels and beach equipment, or to protect themselves from the wind.

White or colored, single-colored or striped, private or public, the cabins are part of the image of Normandy's sea side vacations.

There are many specimens that make the landscape of the Normandy coastline unique:

- in the dunes of Gouville, the 70 cabins with multicolored roofs are part of the postcard of this seaside village, destroyed during the Second World War,
- The cabins on the beach of Yport have a very harmonious marine look, white with black and blue stripes, among the most beautiful of the Alabaster coast.
- Deauville has 450 Art Deco-style bathing cabins, designed by the architect Charles Adda, who, in the 1920s, imagined the "Pompeian baths". Inspired by the Roman baths.
- Trouville with its beach cabins, which date back to 1939 has retained the image of a resort town.
- the 700 beach cabins in Le Havre that regained the irinitial 100% white appearance, painted in color between 2017 and 2021 by Dutch artist Karel Martens.

Fence 12a – Fables de la Fontaine
Natural

The French poet Jean de La Fontaine, contemporary of Moliere, member of the French Academy, was one of the most popular French writers, he belonged to the generation of the precursors of the Enlightenment. He achieved his literary fame thanks to the adaptation into French and inspiration of ancient fables and tales, of Aesop of Anatolia, he reinvented them with his own poetic and satirical style. "Fables of La Fontaine" were grouped in a collection of 243 fables, in 12 books, his first volume was published in 1668 and the last in 1694, a year before his death. These fables have become a classic work of French literature.

La Fontaine's fables are known for featuring anthropomorphized animals, that is, animals that have human characteristics and act as characters in the stories. Each fable usually concludes with a moral or life lesson. La Fontaine's work is appreciated for his keen observation of human nature and his ability to convey moral teachings through the witty and often humorous stories.

Some of La Fontaine's best-known fables are "La Cigalle et la Fourmi" (The Cicada and the Ant), "Le Corbeau et le Renard" (The Raven and the Fox) and "Le Lièvre et la Tortue" (The Hare and the Tortoise). These fables, initially conceived for an adult audience, have become a classic of children's literature since the 19th century and continue to be read and studied as a reference in French literature and education.

Fence 13 – Mascote
Blue, white and red

The mascot of the Paris 2024 Olympic and Paralympic Games bears the name of Olympic Phryge, inspired by the classic small Phrygian caps (bonnet phrygien).

These hats can be seen on the iconic figure of Marianne in town halls across the country, and even on every day objects such as coins and stamps. The Phrygian cap, also known as the "freedom cap", transcends borders as an international symbol of the ideal of freedom. Historically, they were worn by freed slaves during Roman times and have endured in various emblems in both North and South America.

The mascots feature the colors of the French flag, red, white and blue, and the gold Paris 2024 logo on the chest.

The choice of the name and design was based on symbolizing freedom and personifying allegorical figures representative of the Republic of France, as well as demonstrating that sport can change lives.

Fence 1 – Fables de la Fontaine Natural

The French poet Jean de La Fontaine, contemporary of Moliere, member of the French Academy, was one of the most popular French writers, he belonged to the generation of the precursors of the Enlightenment. He achieved his literary fame thanks to the adaptation into French and inspiration of ancient fables and tales, of Aesop of Anatolia, he reinvented them with his own poetic and satirical style. "Fables of La Fontaine" were grouped in a collection of 243 fables, in 12 books, his first volume was published in 1668 and the last in 1694, a year before his death. These fables have become a classic work of French literature.

La Fontaine's fables are known for featuring anthropomorphized animals, that is, animals that have human characteristics and act as characters in the stories. Each fable usually concludes with a moral or life lesson. La Fontaine's work is appreciated for his keen observation of human nature and his ability to convey moral teachings through the witty and often humorous stories.

Some of La Fontaine's best-known fables are "La Cigalle et la Fourmi" (The Cicada and the Ant), "Le Corbeau et le Renard" (The Raven and the Fox) and "Le Lièvre et la Tortue" (The Hare and the Tortoise). These fables, initially conceived for an adult audience, have become a classic of children's literature since the 19th century and continue to be read and studied as a reference in French literature and education.

Fence 2 – Montgolfier
Blue and yellow

The best-known flights, considered as the origin of aerostation, are those of Montgolfier's in France, Joseph Michel and Jacques Etienne, who belonged to a dynasty of paper manufacturers from Annonay, south of Lyon. It has been reported that in 1782, when 42-year-old Joseph was in Annonay, south of Lyon, watching a woman's shirt float in the air by the action of a fire, he concluded that hot air lifted things up. Then, accompanied by his brother Etienne Jacques, 37, he proved that hot air or hydrogen were perfectly retained by a silk sheath. These principles had already been formulated 2000 years earlier in Syracuse by Archimedes, the inventor of incendiary bombs. According to Archimedes, a balloon or any other vehicle containing a substance lighter than air would rise until its weight was equal to the surrounding atmosphere.

King Louis XVI, fond of science and technical advances, demanded a demonstration at Versailles. It was scheduled for September 19, 1783. Jacques Montgolfier worked side by side with his friend Jean-Baptiste Réveillon, a paper manufacturer, on the design of a varnished taffeta balloon. In this model, the balloon had a wicker basket attached to it, which housed a sheep, a duck and a rooster. These animals were to be the first aeronauts. After three hours of inflation, the balloon lifted off with its cargo. After about ten minutes of flight and three kilometers of travel, it landed safely with its crew.

The only thing left to do was to take the risk of flying in a balloon. An ambitious and charismatic physicist, Jean-François Pilâtre de Rozier, proved to be cold-blooded enough to do so. On October 19, together with the Marquis François Laurent d'Arlandes, he climbed to 100 meters. Shortly after, they performed the feat again, this time in front of Louis XVI. After almost half an hour of flight and nearly ten kilometers of travel, at a maximum altitude of close to one thousand meters, they landed in Butte-aux-Cailles (today a suburb of Paris). The first flight manned by humans was a success.

The Montgolfier's made a public demonstration of their invention on June 4, 1783, on the outskirts of Annonay. They designed a paper-lined linen balloon, which they filled with more than six hundred cubic meters of hot air by burning wet straw and wool in braziers. It took eight men to hold the contraption, which was 11 meters in diameter. When it was released, it rose rapidly to an altitude of 1,800 meters. During the nearly ten minutes it remained in the sky, it moved nearly two kilometers.

Fence 3 – Vinification
Brown and purple

Originating in the Near East, wine arrived in France with the Greek colonization and gained momentum after the Roman conquest, beginning in the 1st century AD.

This process begins with the grape harvest, where the best moment is carefully selected to obtain a perfect balance of sugars and acidity in the grapes. After destemming and pressing, the resulting must undergo fermentation, a critical step where yeasts transform the sugars, giving rise to the wine. This process can vary in containers such as stainless-steel tanks or oak barrels, depending on the type of wine being produced.

Barrel aging is a common stage in French winemaking, adding complexity and nuances to the wine. Some regions practice the art of blending, mixing grape varieties to achieve complex and balanced wines. Once the optimum point is reached, the wine is bottled.

What distinguishes winemaking in France is regional diversity. From the elegance of Burgundy wines to the complexity of Bordeaux reds, each wine region has its own characteristics, practices and regulations. This unique approach and the influence of terroir result in some of the most renowned and appreciated wines in the world, cementing France's position as a wine powerhouse.

Fence 5 – Cabines de plages
Multiple colors

The history of beach cabins is closely linked to the history of sea bathing, which started to become fashionable in the 19th century. These wooden (or cloth) cabins were at first mobile, placed on top of horse-drawn carts. Their purpose was to allow bathers to change without being seen, to store deck chairs, umbrellas, towels and beach equipment, or to protect themselves from the wind.

White or colored, single-colored or striped, private or public, the cabins are part of the image of Normandy's sea side vacations.

There are many specimens that make the landscape of the Normandy coastline unique:

- in the dunes of Gouville, the 70 cabins with multicolored roofs are part of the postcard of this seaside village, destroyed during the Second World War,
- The cabins on the beach of Yport have a very harmonious marine look, white with black and blue stripes, among the most beautiful of the Alabaster coast.
- Deauville has 450 ArtDeco-style bathing cabins, designed by the architect Charles Adda, who, in the 1920s, imagined the "Pompeian baths". Inspired by the Roman baths.
- Trouville with its beach cabins, which date back to 1939 has retained the image of a resort town.
- the 700 beach cabins in Le Havre that regained their initial 100% white appearance, painted in color between 2017 and 2021 by Dutch artist Karel Martens.

Fence 6 – New pictogramms
Blue and pink

Seeking to avoid conventional representations of each sport the pictograms designed for Paris2024 take the form of a "coat of arms", serving as a distinctive symbol or each discipline.

These eye-catching designs incorporate three fundamental graphic elements : an X-shaped axis of symmetry, are presentation of the field of play and specific elements that characterize each sport. The designers worked closely with the international federations, ensuring precision down to the smallest details of the various pictograms. This evolution aims to generate a more emotive symbol, transcending the mere visual representation of the sport. In total, 62 "badges" have been created to cover the various Olympic and Paralympic disciplines.

The introduction of pictograms to illustrate each sport dates back to the Tokyo 1964 Olympic Games, while the first pictograms for the Paralympic Games appeared for the first time in Barcelona 1992. The previous edition already sought to innovate in this respect, incorporating the first ever animated icons designed by Masaaki Hiromura. This continuous effort to evolve pictograms high lights the importance of these visual symbols in the dynamic and emotive representation of sports in Olympic and Paralympic events.

Fence 7 – Toulouse Lautrec
Red

Henri de Toulouse Lautrec, a prominent French painter and poster artist of the late 19th century, born on November 24, 1864, in Albi, France, and died on September 9, 1901, left a lasting mark on the world of art and culture.

His work is characterized by capturing the bohemian life and night life of Paris during the Belle Époque, a time of relative peace and prosperity in Europe between the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He was particularly noted for his depictions of cabarets, theaters and brothels, with the Moulin Rouge being one of the most iconic places immortalized in his works.

Toulouse-Lautrec was known for his style, which combined vibrant colors and expressive lines. In addition to his artistic skill, he also excelled as a poster artist, depicting advertising posters that have become iconic works of art of the time.

Despite his short life, his artistic legacy has endured, and Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec has had a great influence on the development of modern art, especially in the field of poster art and the representation of urban life.

Fence 8a – Folies de la Villette
Red and white

"Les Folies de la Villette" belong to the Parc de la Villette, a large urban park located in the north east of Paris, France. This park is known for being one of the largest in the city and for hosting a variety of cultural, architectural and leisure facilities. Parc de la Villette stands out for its contemporary approach to integrating art, architecture and cultural activities in an open-air setting, and is a frequently used venue for events and festivals throughout the year.

With in the Parc de la Villette are "Les Folies", a series of remarkable architectural structures designed by architect Bernard Tschumi. These "folies" are buildings of various shapes and functions that serve as stages, pavilions, and other spaces for cultural and recreational events.

Some of the most notable "folies" include the "Grande Halle" (Great Hall), an iron and glass structure that was formerly a cattle market and is now used for events and exhibitions. Other "folies" are used to host artistic, the theatrical and musical activities. In addition, the park has large green areas, canals, and playgrounds, making it a popular place for Parisians and visitors alike.

Fence 9 – Los Angeles 2028
Multiple colors

The next Olympic and Paralympic Games to be held in Los Angeles in 2028 are all about people, from the athletes to the representation of the Los Angeles community. Leveraging the sports infrastructure already in place in Los Angeles, these games seek to elevate the overall experience and generate sustainable benefits in the Southern California region before, during and after 2028.

The comprehensive vision of the LA28 Games goes beyond sports competition. They seek to inspire action and champion ideals, catalyzing programs that benefit the diverse residents of Los Angeles, with a focus on ensuring equitable access to sports for Los Angeles youth.

In addition, the LA28 Games aim to instill a sense of pride in the people of Los Angeles, contributing significantly to the promotion of inclusion, innovation and creativity.

The uniqueness of the logo and emblem of the upcoming sports celebration lies in its dynamic configuration, as it is an animated logo, constantly moving and changing, taking advantage of visual technologies.

It highlights the uniqueness of the dynamic and interchangeable letter "A" in the "LA28" emblem, which will adopt various shapes, designs and colors, thanks to more than 20 people bringing their personal stories to life through an artistic "A", adapting to the moment and the individual identity of each one of them. This approach pays homage to core values such as creativity, diversity, self-expression and inclusion, encapsulating the changing and multifaceted essence of the celebration.

Athlete No. 13 Emiliano Portale (ITA) eliminated

Summary:

The horse, Future, ridden by athlete No. 13 Emiliano Portale (ITA), was eliminated during the Eventing Dressage test after blood was found in the horse's mouth during the post-competition check on 27 July. Elimination under this Rule does not imply that there was any intention to hurt or harm the horse, but the FEI discipline rules have been put in place to ensure that horse welfare is protected at all times.

Competition Format and Rules

Format et règlement des compétitions

As of MON 15 JUL 2024

Olympic Competition Format

The Olympic equestrian dressage discipline at the Olympic Games Paris 2024 comprises two separate events: the dressage team event and the dressage individual event.

All athletes compete in the grand prix test in which the scores of the performance count towards qualification for both the dressage team event and the dressage individual event. The 60 athletes will be split into six groups of 10.

After the grand prix test the best 10 teams, including all teams tied for 10th place, will qualify to the team event final (grand prix special). The top two athletes from each group, and the six athletes with the next best scores will qualify to the individual event final (grand prix freestyle).

Scores are not carried forward from the grand prix to either the grand prix special or grand prix freestyle.

Differences between the FEI World Championships and the Olympic Games

At the FEI World Championships, there are the same three rounds of competition (grand prix, grand prix special and grand prix freestyle), but medals are awarded as follows:

- Team medals after the grand prix (also the qualifier for the grand prix special)
- One set of individual medals after the grand prix special (also the qualifier for the grand prix freestyle)
- A second set of individual medals after the grand prix freestyle

Teams comprise four athlete/horse combinations with a dropped score.

Changes since the Olympic Games Tokyo 2020

The team event total points have been changed to total percentage score (sum of team members percentage scores).

Sport Rules and Procedures

Competition method

Horses must be at least eight years of age. Qualification is achieved by meeting the minimum standards of performance at nominated competitions, or competition levels, in the period beginning from 1 January 2023.

The arena must be a perfectly flat and level sand surface; 60 metres long and 20 metres wide; marked outside the enclosure of the arena and separated from the spectators by a distance of not less than 15 metres.

The grand prix test contains a series of compulsory movements. The grand prix special is a slightly shorter and more concentrated version of the grand prix test. The grand prix freestyle (Kur) is a freestyle composition of grand prix movements performed with the athlete's own choreography to musical accompaniment. Seven judges award marks out of ten for each movement and for a collective assessment.

There are two horse inspections which takes place before the grand prix and before the grand prix freestyle.

Tiebreak rules

Team, applicable for grand prix special only. No tie break rules are applied to team results from the grand prix.

- In the event of a tie, the classification will be decided on the results of:
 1. The best result by the lowest scoring team member in the grand prix special to break the tie
 2. If still tied, the same rule will be applied to the next lowest scoring athlete
 3. If still tied, the teams will share the rank (sorted by NOC code)

Individual

- In the event of a tie in the grand prix, the classification will be decided as follows:
 1. In case of a tie, the highest and lowest total judges' scores for each athlete will be added and divided by two, with the highest score deciding the tie
 2. If still tied, the second highest and second lowest total judges' scores for each athlete will be added and divided by two with the highest score deciding the tie
 3. If still tied, the third highest and third lowest total judges' scores for each athlete will be added and divided by two, with the highest score deciding the tie
 4. If still tied, the tie will be decided by a draw
- In the event of a tie in the grand prix freestyle, the classification will be decided on the results of:
 1. The artistic marks in the grand prix freestyle will be used to break the tie
 2. If still tied, the marks for harmony will be used to break the tie
 3. If still tied, the marks for choreography will be used to break the tie
 4. If still tied, the competitors will share the rank (sorted by NOC code and then by athlete name)

Penalties and elimination

An athlete may receive the following penalties for "Error of course" during a performance; first error is penalised with two percentage points from the total score; second error is elimination.

An athlete may also receive penalties for other faults. It is the responsibility of the judge at C to decide whether a penalty should be applied and the other judges' sheets should be marked accordingly to ensure consistency but they are not cumulative and will not result in elimination.

Disqualification rules

An athlete disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct will receive no rank and will be listed at the bottom of the individual ranking. If the athlete is part of a team in the team event, the team will also be disqualified.

Protests/appeals

There is no appeal against the judges' marks. The NOCs may protest or appeal according to the FEI rules.

Competition Format and Rules

Format et règlement des compétitions

As of MON 15 JUL 2024

Olympic Competition Format

The Olympic equestrian jumping discipline at the Olympic Games Paris 2024 comprises two separate events: the jumping team event and the jumping individual event.

The jumping team event comprises two rounds: qualifier and final.

The jumping individual event comprises two rounds: qualifier and final.

The top 30 athletes (including all athletes tied on penalties and time for 30th place) from the individual qualifier progress to the individual final.

The top 10 teams, including all teams tied for 10th place, from the team qualifier progress to the team final.

No scores are carried forward from the qualifying rounds in either event.

The team consists of three athlete/horse combinations plus one reserve athlete/horse combination. The team score is the sum of the penalties of the three athletes on the team. Athletes who receive the IRM EL, RT or WD will not receive a score. Teams with one athlete who has the IRM EL, RT or WD will be placed according to the combined penalties incurred by the two athletes who completed the competition. Teams in which all three athletes completed the competition without the IRM EL, RT or WD will be ranked before teams with only two athletes who completed the competition without any IRM. Teams with two athletes who have the IRM EL, RT or WD will be eliminated.

In each round, athlete/horse combinations jump a series of obstacles that may include water jumps, simulated stone walls, parallel rails, triple bars and many other variations all designed to test the athlete's skill and the horse's jumping ability. Penalties are given for faults such as knocking down an obstacle, refusals and exceeding the time allowed.

Differences between the FEI World Championships and the Olympic Games

At the FEI World Championships, a different format is used, as follows:

- First competition (for individuals and teams): Conducted over a big table A course and judged under table C without a jump-off in the event of equality of time for first place. Each athlete's time is converted into penalties which are carried forward by teams (best three scores per team) and individuals to the second competition. No medals are awarded.
- Second competition (team final, second individual competition): Two rounds run over two days. Table A competition not against the clock,. In case of teams tied on combined penalties for first place in the overall team classification after the first and second competitions (best three scores per team in the first competition and best three scores per team in each of the two rounds of the second competition) there will be a jump-off against the clock. Team medals are distributed. The best placed 25 athletes qualify for the third competition and carry forward their penalties.
- Third competition (individual final): Two different successive rounds. Table A competition not against the clock. In case of a tie on penalties for first place in the overall individual classification established after the first competition and the two rounds of the second and third competitions there will be one jump-off against the clock. Individual medals distributed.

Teams comprise four athlete/horse combinations with a discarded score in each round.

Changes since the Olympic Games Tokyo 2020

The team event will now be contested before the individual event.

Sport Rules and Procedures

Competition method

Horses must be at least nine years of age. Qualification is achieved by meeting minimum standards of performance at nominated competitions or competition levels in the period beginning from 1 January 2023.

A maximum of three athletes/horses per nation, selected from among those entered, may compete. The Organising Committee will organise a training session before the competition, for the competitors of the jumping competition in the main arena.

For each competition, a course of 12 to 14 or 15 obstacles is laid out in an enclosed arena. Various factors are tested in the jumping discipline (speed, precision, power, etc.) but the object is always the same: to jump the entire course within the time allowed without making a mistake - a clear round. If an obstacle is knocked down or in case of a refusal, "faults" are accumulated, and a fall of either horse or athlete results in elimination.

Tiebreak rules

Team and individual

If there is a tie on penalties for a gold medal, a jump-off will take place.

If there is a tie on penalties for silver or bronze medals, the times of the competitors will be used to break the tie. A jump-off will only take place if there is a tie on penalties and time.

Disqualification rules

If an athlete/horse combination, taking part in the individual event, is disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct (DQB) they will receive no rank and will be listed at the bottom of the individual ranking. If an athlete/horse combination, taking part in the team event, is disqualified for unsportsmanlike behaviour or serious misconduct (DQB), the entire team in question is disqualified and may take no further part in the competition.

Protests/appeals

The NOCs may protest or appeal according to the FEI rules.

Description of Fences

Description des obstacles

Fence 1 – Tokyo Wave Blue and White

Author: (Katsushika Hokusai); Original Title: (Kanagawa-oki nami ura); Year: 1829 – 1832

Base/stand: Colour-engraved upon a wooden block. Japanese ukiyo-e master.

The Great Wave is the most recognized piece by Japanese painter Katsushika Hokusai, who specializes in ukiyo-e. Published between 1830 and 1833 during the Edo period, it forms part of the collection “Thirty-six views of Mount Fuji”, even though Mount Fuji is the smallest element.

The wave references the relentless force of nature, the sea, and the importance this event has in Japan’s economy and its cultural development, given the country is formed by 4 islands.

Fence 2 – Rodin
Beige

If Florence can boast of having the Gates of Paradise, Paris can do the same with the Gates of Hell, a project said to be the best sculptor of the twentieth century, Auguste Rodin, unfinished by his death, but still totally iconic. At the Musée d'Orsay they keep the original in plaster, and two other original copies in metal are treasured in the sculptor's museums in Philadelphia and Tokyo.

The commission for "The Door of Hell" ("La Porte de l'Enfer"), which Rodin received in 1880, was to create a monumental set of sculptures for a new museum of decorative arts in Paris. Rodin was inspired by Dante Alighieri's "The Divine Comedy" for this work and "The Thinker" was initially conceived as a representation of the Italian poet, Dante, reflecting on his work.

The Gothic Cathedral (right wing).

This work is part of a group of hands, mainly carved in marble after 1900, which also includes The Hand of God and The Hand of the Devil. All of them underline Rodin's great interest in this part of the human anatomy, which he isolated in order to give it an autonomous appearance. The Cathedral is expressed in this work by a pair of hands joined in prayer. Rodin himself stated that, having discovered in the ogive the main element of Gothic architecture, he wanted to express with these hands joined in prayer, by drawing an ogival form, a form equivalent to the cathedral.

The sculptural composition is formed by two right hands belonging to two different persons, a man and a woman, curving towards each other in the form of a vault.

The original, preserved in the Musée Rodin in Paris, was carved in stone, the author having left the traces of his tools in the material.

The work was originally entitled The Ark of the Covenant, adopting the title by which it is known worldwide after Cathedrals of France.

Fence 3 – Pompidou
White, blue and red

The Centre Pompidou, officially known as the Centre Georges Pompidou, is an outstanding museum located in the heart of Paris. Inaugurated in 1977, six years after its construction began, it stands out for its avant-garde architectural design, the work of architects Renzo Piano, Richard Rogers and Gianfranco Franchini.

The building defies convention and contrasts with the classic style of the city because its architects took industrial, factory elements such as ducts, stairs, pipes and ventilation ducts to the outside to give the museum as much exhibition space as possible, shaping the façade itself and creating an industrial and colorful look that makes it unique.

At the Pompidou Center, it's easy to see how things work. To bring some order to the chaotic facade, they painted each element in a color according to its function: blue for air conditioning, yellow for electricity, green for waste and red for transport.

The Pompidou Center houses the National Museum of Modern Art, with an extensive collection spanning artistic movements from the 20th century to the present day. Everything from paintings and sculptures to photographs and multimedia works, the collection offers a broad overview of modern and contemporary art.

As a cultural and architectural icon, the Pompidou Center has become a landmark of the Parisian art scene. Its commitment to architectural innovation and the presentation of avant-garde works make it a great artistic expression.

Fence 4 – Champs Élysées

Grey

The Champs Élysées, one of the most famous avenues in the world and most famous of Paris, which welcomes about 300,000 visitors per day. With 1910m long and 70 m wide, it extends from the Place de la Concorde to the Place de Charles De Gaulle, where it culminates with the perspective of the imposing Arc de Triomphe. The famous avenue was originally a swamp, and its construction as one of the first parks of the city, began in 1640, with the alignment of trees in continuity with the Tuileries Palace and the Louvre Museum, and with the layout designed by André Le Nôtre, gardener architect of the Sun King.

This tree-lined avenue has become more beautiful with each passing decade, a symbol of Parisian elegance and culture. Along its two kilometers, the Champs-Élysées is home to luxury boutiques, French brands, prestigious theaters such as the Théâtre des Champs-Élysées, refined restaurants and significant events, including parades and festivities to celebrate the New Year.

The classical architecture and sophistication of the avenue merge with the bustling commercial and cultural life, creating a unique atmosphere. The culmination of this majestic avenue is the iconic Arc de Triomphe, from where panoramic views of the city can be enjoyed. The Champs Élysées encapsulates the essence of Parisian glamour, attracting visitors from all over the world with its timeless charm and its contribution to the cultural and touristic richness of Paris.

The Champs Élysées are still evolving, and currently with the idea of returning the avenue to the use and enjoyment of Parisians, a major renovation project is being developed to gain pedestrian areas and transform it into an extraordinary garden.

Fence 5a – Gastronomie (sucrée)

Pink

French pastry gastronomy is a refined culinary art that has achieved worldwide renown. French pâtisserie encompasses a wide variety of exquisite creations ranging from Biscuit Rose, pink cookies originating from the city of Reims, in the Champagne region of France, whose origin dates to the 17th century, and since then, has been an important part of the rich culinary tradition of the Champagne region. Its characteristic pink hue gives it a unique visual appeal that complements its subtle flavor and versatility in the kitchen. And modern delicacies such as the iconic macarons, composed of two small, round, smooth cookies in virtually every color and flavor, made with ground almonds, powdered sugar and egg whites, enveloping a creamy filling.

Or the mastery in the elaboration of flaky pastry, in croissants and pains au chocolat, emblematic of the French gastronomic tradition.

French master chocolatiers are renowned for their skill in high quality chocolate making, producing chocolates, bars and truffles that are true works of art. Pastry in France goes beyond simple confectionery, with innovative chefs applying modern techniques and elegant presentations in the creation of unique and artistic desserts. Attention to detail and savoir-faire are fundamental in French pastry, where each creation strives for perfection in terms of texture, taste and presentation. Although rooted in tradition, French pastry gastronomy also embraces creativity, allowing chefs to experiment with new ingredients and flavor combinations.

In the context of the Belle Époque and the interwar period, the Art Deco movement emerged as a stylistic response to the ornamental excess of Art Nouveau. This style, characterized by geometric lines, simplified forms and the use of modern materials, left a profound mark on the city's architecture and design. Landmark buildings such as the Théâtre des Champs-Élysées, inaugurated in 1913, and the Palais de Chaillot, built for the 1937 International Exposition, epitomize the elegance and modernity of Art Deco in Paris.

This movement not only influenced architecture, but also left its mark on interior design and decoration. Clean-lined furniture, geometric lamps and ornate details became distinctive elements of the Art Deco aesthetic, fusing luxury and functionality. In addition, the urban expansion of Paris during this era led to the creation of grand avenues flanked by Art Deco buildings, representing the progressive spirit of the city.

Although Art Deco lost its prominence after World War II, its influence persists in Parisian architecture. Many buildings from this era contribute to the rich stylistic diversity and unique architectural charm of the French capital.

Fence 7 – Ballet
Beige and black

The history of ballet in Paris began in the 17th century, when Jean-Baptiste Lully and Pierre Beauchamp laid the foundations at the court of Louis XIV. The creation of the Académie Royale de Danse in 1661 and the inauguration of the Paris Opera in 1875 marked fundamental milestones. These events contributed to the formalization of dance techniques and consolidated Paris as a world epicenter of classical ballet.

In the 20th century, the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, directed by Serge Diaghilev, played a leading role on the Parisian stage, introducing innovations. After World War II, ballet experienced a resurgence, and the arrival of Rudolf Nureyev in 1960 as director of the Paris Opera ballet marked a golden era. His collaboration with Margot Fonteyn contributed to the international prestige of the Parisian ballet.

Today, Paris remains a vibrant cultural center for ballet, where classical tradition merges with contemporary experimentation. From the Académie Royale de Danse to current explorations, the history of ballet in Paris reflects a rich artistic evolution that has left an indelible mark on the world dance scene.

Fence 8 – Horloge d'Orsay
Black and beige

"Horloge d'Orsay," the clock on the façade of the Musée d'Orsay, has become the hallmark and one of the most recognizable architectural features of the museum, which was originally built as a train station, the Gare d'Orsay, for the Universal Exhibition of 1900. It served as a terminus for short-distance trains to the southwest of France.

However, in the 1930s, the station became obsolete for modern trains and was threatened with demolition because it threatened ruin in 1973. Instead, in the 1980s, it was transformed into the Musée d'Orsay, dedicated mainly to the visual arts produced in the period from 1848 to 1914.

Although the upper station has disappeared today, railway activity continues underneath the museum, because underground we can get off at the Musée d'Orsay station of the Regional Express Network, RER.

The museum houses some of the most significant works of the Victorian period and the transition to modernism.

Among these are :

- Edouard Monet with "Breakfast on the Grass" and "Olympia" by, defying the artistic conventions of his time.
- Gustave Courbet brings his bold realism with "The Piano Lesson" and "The Origin of the World".
- Vincent van Gogh, although not belonging to the Victorian period, adds his genius with "Starry Night on the Rhone".

The clock of the Musée d'Orsay is located on the left side of the museum's main façade, facing the Seine River. Its distinctive design, with Roman numerals and wrought iron hands, has become an iconic symbol of the museum and can be seen from the opposite bank of the river and from some key points of the city of Paris. It is one of the most photographed sites in the city. This clock, along with the unique architecture of the building, contributes to the charm of the Musée d'Orsay and its importance as one of the most prominent museums in the city.

In the jump we wanted to contrast the large scale of the clock from the inside against the small scale within the composition of the facade of the museum. Its interior view has also become a strong tourist attraction due to the spectacular views that can be seen through the dial of the enormous clock façade.

Fence 9 – Oceans Protection
Blue and black

Jacques-Yves Cousteau was a famous French oceanographer, explorer, filmmaker and scientist. He was born on June 11, 1910, and died on June 25, 1997. Cousteau was a pioneer in underwater research and played a crucial role in the conservation and protection of the oceans.

Cousteau co-invented the modern diving regulator with Émile Gagnan, which allowed divers to explore the ocean depths more safely and efficiently. He also founded the Cousteau Society in 1973, an organization dedicated to marine conservation and ocean research.

Throughout his life, Cousteau led numerous underwater expeditions and produced a series of documentaries and television programs, such as the famous "The World of Silence" series. These works raised public awareness of the beauty and importance of the oceans, as well as the challenges they face due to pollution and exploitation.

Cousteau advocated for the protection of the oceans and the preservation of marine life, and his legacy lives on through the continuing work of the Cousteau Society and other organizations dedicated to marine conservation. His contribution to underwater exploration and environmental awareness has left a lasting mark on the history of oceanography and ocean conservation.

Fence 10 – Opéra Garnier
Brown and yellow

Opera in France was introduced in the 17th century, initially with performances of Italian opera at the court of Anne of Austria. Jean-Baptiste Lully, an Italian composer, played a pivotal role in establishing a distinctively French operatic style and collaborating with Molière in the integration of music and scene. The founding of the Opéra Royal de Paris in 1669 by Louis XIV cemented the prominent position of French opera in European culture, leaving a significant mark on the history of music and the performing arts. Paris is a leading operatic epicenter, home to iconic theaters such as the Opéra Garnier and the Opéra Bastille.

Napoleon III on the occasion of the great works of remodelling and transformation of the city by Haussmann, commissioned a young and unknown architect the new opera house, becoming the thirteenth opera house in Paris after its foundation by King Louis XIV in 1669. After 15 years of construction, it was inaugurated in 1875, and the architect Charles Garnier eventually gave his name to the building. His acoustic studies and vision requirements shaped the horseshoe shape of the main hall, transforming it into one of the iconic opera houses. The Opéra Garnier marked a new architectural trend that spread throughout the world under the name of Beaux Arts.

The original ceiling of the dome of the central auditorium, painted in 1875, was transformed by the painter Marc Chagall, who incorporated great opera composers in a singular universe, and is a multicolored impact. Carefully placed over the original paintings, its inauguration in 1964 left no one indifferent, but it is now, with some perspective, that the bold contrast between the painting and its aristocratic surroundings can be appreciated.

French composers such as Georges Bizet and Jules Massenet have contributed to the international operatic repertoire with works such as "Carmen" and "Manon", and Jacques Offenbach, with his masterpiece "The Tales of Hoffmann", is an example of the richness and diversity of the French operatic repertoire, which is characterized by its fusion of dramatic and lyrical elements, incorporating ballets and elaborate choruses. Comic opera, which has flourished in France, stands out for its mixture of comedy and lyrical music.

France hosts renowned opera festivals, such as the Aix-en-Provence Festival and the Montpellier Opera Festival, which attract artists and opera lovers from around the world. Institutions such as the Opéra National de Paris and the Opéra Comique play a crucial role in preserving and promoting opera in the country, ensuring that this art form remains vibrant and accessible to current and future generations.

Fence 11 – Art Urbain
Multicolor

Urban art in Paris has a rich history dating back decades, gaining momentum especially in the 1980s. Pioneering figures such as Blek le Rat and Miss Tic helped establish street art on the city's streets. Districts such as Le Marais and Belleville are known for their vibrant murals and urban art festivals that transform the streets into open-air galleries. One example of a dynamic platform is Le M.U.R. in the Oberkampf neighbourhood, where every two weeks a new artist exhibits his or her work.

Nuit Blanche, an annual event, celebrates contemporary art in Paris and includes installations and light projections throughout the city. Projects such as "100 Murs Pour La Paix" seek to beautify Paris with murals that convey messages of peace and tolerance. The city also attracts international artists, who participate in festivals and specific projects, bringing diversity and global reach to Parisian urban art. Some urban artists confront classical art by intervening in iconic places, establishing a visual dialogue between the traditional and the contemporary. Overall, urban art in Paris is a creative and dynamic expression that is uniquely integrated into the cultural and urban fabric of the city.

Fence 12 – Fables de la Fontaine
Natural

The French poet Jean de La Fontaine, contemporary of Moliere, member of the French Academy, was one of the most popular French writers, he belonged to the generation of the precursors of the Enlightenment. He achieved his literary fame thanks to the adaptation into French and inspiration of ancient fables and tales, of Aesop of Anatolia, he reinvented them with his own poetic and satirical style. "Fables of La Fontaine" were grouped in a collection of 243 fables, in 12 books, his first volume was published in 1668 and the last in 1694, a year before his death. These fables have become a classic work of French literature.

La Fontaine's fables are known for featuring anthropomorphized animals, that is, animals that have human characteristics and act as characters in the stories. Each fable usually concludes with a moral or life lesson. La Fontaine's work is appreciated for his keen observation of human nature and his ability to convey moral teachings through the witty and often humorous stories.

Some of La Fontaine's best-known fables are "La Cigale et la Fourmi" (The Cicada and the Ant), "Le Corbeau et le Renard" (The Raven and the Fox) and "Le Lièvre et la Tortue" (The Hare and the Tortoise). These fables, initially conceived for an adult audience, have become a classic of children's literature since the 19th century and continue to be read and studied as a reference in French literature and education.

Fence 13a – OGGG Paris

OOGG1900 The first to be held in Paris, and noted for its long duration, extending from May 14 to October 28, for its diversity of sports, which included not only traditional disciplines such as athletics and cycling, but also peculiar events such as cricket, croquet, golf and “Pelota Vasca”. In addition, it was the first time that women participated in the Olympic Games, with the victory of British tennis player Charlotte Cooper standing out. However, the complexity together with the long duration of the events, marked these Games as unique in their history, contributing to the subsequent evolution of the event.

OOGG 1924 marked the eighth edition of the modern era. This event was important for several reasons, including the debut of the Olympic flag with the five interlocking rings, symbolizing the union of the continents. France, as the host country, stood out in the medal standings, leading in the number of gold medals. In addition, these games marked the debut of women in athletics and swimming competitions. Technological innovation also played an important role, with live broadcasting of events via radio, allowing a wider audience to follow the sports competitions. The 1924 Paris Olympics are therefore known for their organization, innovation and significant increase in international participation.

OOGG 2024 Paris will host this year's XXXIII Summer Olympic Games, with the intention of becoming the most sustainable and eco-responsible games, giving importance to immersive experiences, with several participatory events for the public, taking place in the heart of Paris, making the most of the potential and historical significance of the city, so that the Champs Elysées will host cycling, Champs de Mars will host beach volleyball, the Seine River itself will be transformed into an Olympic swimming pool, triathlon events under the Eiffel Tower, skateboarding in the Place de la Concorde, tennis at Roland Garros, venues for various disciplines in Versailles, Les Invalides, Grand Palais, in the Arena Bercy... And at the same time sharing the development of the Games with venues all over France, reaching Marseille with sailing and even Tahiti with surfing. In Paris, a new Olympic sport, break dancing, will become an Olympic sport for the first time in history.

"Les Folies de la Villette" belong to the Parc de la Villette, a large urban park located in the northeast of Paris, France. This park is known for being one of the largest in the city and for hosting a variety of cultural, architectural and leisure facilities.

Parc de la Villette stands out for its contemporary approach to integrating art, architecture and cultural activities in an open-air setting, and is a frequently used venue for events and festivals throughout the year.

Within the Parc de la Villette are "Les Folies", a series of remarkable architectural structures designed by architect Bernard Tschumi. These "folies" are buildings of various shapes and functions that serve as stages, pavilions, and other spaces for cultural and recreational events.

Some of the most notable "folies" include the "Grande Halle" (Great Hall), an iron and glass structure that was formerly a cattle market and is now used for events and exhibitions. Other "folies" are used to host artistic, theatrical and musical activities. In addition, the park has large green areas, canals, and playgrounds, making it a popular place for Parisians and visitors alike.

Description of Fences

Description des obstacles

Fence 1 – Mascot

Blue, white and red

The mascot of the Paris 2024 Olympic and Paralympic Games bears the name of Olympic Phryge, inspired by the classic small Phrygian caps (bonnet phrygien).

These hats can be seen on the iconic figure of Marianne in town halls across the country, and even on everyday objects such as coins and stamps. The Phrygian cap, also known as the "freedom cap", transcends borders as an international symbol of the ideal of freedom. Historically, they were worn by freed slaves during Roman times and have endured in various emblems in both North and South America.

The mascots feature the colors of the French flag, red, white and blue, and the gold Paris 2024 logo on the chest.

The choice of the name and design was based on symbolizing freedom and personifying allegorical figures representative of the Republic of France, as well as demonstrating that sport can change lives.

Fence 2 – Statue de la Liberté
Green and grey

The Statue of Liberty is one of the most iconic attractions in the United States, a universal symbol of freedom and democracy, and its image is recognized around the world.

It was a gift from the French people to the United States to commemorate the centennial of their independence from the U.S. and to symbolize the friendship between the two countries. The statue was designed by the French sculptor Frédéric Auguste Bartholdi and its internal structure, initially designed by Viollet Le Duc, was developed by the young engineer Gustave Eiffel, after his untimely death.

The Statue of Liberty was unveiled on October 28, 1886, ten years after the centennial, due to the delay in the work to prepare the base. It is located on Liberty Island in New York Harbor. A visit to the statue and the Island, located nearby, is an important experience for visitors and a reminder of New York's role as a gateway for millions of immigrants who came to the United States in search of a better life.

The statue represents Libertas, the Roman goddess of liberty, and its design includes symbolic elements such as the raised torch, symbolizing the light of freedom, and the tablet with the date of U.S. independence (July 4, 1776) held in her left hand.

Paris also has a replica of the Statue of Liberty, on a smaller scale, which looks like its big sister in New York. It is located at the end of the Ile de Grenelle, in the middle of the Seine River.

The United States returned the favor to the French and gave them on the first centenary of the French Revolution a copy of the Statue of Liberty on a scale four times smaller than the one that stands in the Big Apple. Paris placed it on Swan Island, looking in the direction of its big sister, in a clear and very spiritual New York-Paris connection.

Fence 3 – Haute couture
Pink

French haute couture is the ultimate expression of personalized and exclusive fashion. This art of tailoring involves the creation of made-to-measure garments that stand out for their unique quality and meticulous attention to detail.

Exceptional craftsmanship is a hallmark of haute couture, where highly skilled artisans work with the finest materials, from luxurious fabrics to elaborate details such as lace and embroidery.

Haute couture designers are known for their creativity and unique vision, presenting innovative collections. These exclusive creations are carried out in the ateliers of fashion houses, specialized workshops that are an integral part of the production process.

Haute couture fashion shows, held during Paris Fashion Week, are prestigious events that showcase the unique creations of designers. Their shows turn the city into a hotbed of trends every season, with events everywhere, and an undisputed and lavish world reference. What Paris says in this regard is law.

The exclusivity and prestige associated with haute couture make it a status symbol. Strict regulation by the Chambre Syndicale de la Haute Couture ensures that only fashion houses that meet rigorous criteria can carry the distinction of haute couture. In other words, French haute couture fuses artistic creativity with impeccable craftsmanship, standing out in the fashion world and contributing to the prestige of Paris as the fashion capital of the world.

The passion for fashion as we know it today began in Versailles under the shadow of Louis XIV, the Sun King. His powerful minister Colbert said that fashion was to France what the gold mines of Peru were to Spain.

Marie Antoinette was the world's first top model and the precursor of the seasonal change of attire, her portraits inspired half of Europe when it came to choosing dresses and setting trends. Since then, Paris has been the capital of fashion and savoir faire, with its high point during fashion week, which, although it has no fixed starting date, some speak of 1914 and a show rather than a fashion week.

Fence 4a – Bir-Hakeim
Grey

The Bir-Hakeim Bridge crosses the Seine River and connects the 15th arrondissement with Swan Island. Built between 1903 and 1905, its metallic design features ornate arches and pillars, characteristic of the art deco style. Named in memory of the Battle of Bir-Hakeim, which allowed the French to sign the treaty of free passage after defeating General Rommel and his armored army over the Libyan desert (1942), the bridge pays tribute to the bravery of the French forces in that battle.

This two-level bridge serves as a thoroughfare for vehicles and pedestrians on its upper level, while the lower-level houses line 6 of the Parisian metro. In addition to its practical function, the Bir-Hakeim Bridge offers spectacular views of the Eiffel Tower and the Seine River, making it a popular sight for residents and tourists alike.

Fence 4b – Alexandre III
Grey

The Alexandre III Bridge, built in 1900 for the Universal Exposition in Paris, stands out as one of the most elegant and ornate bridges in the city. Named in honor of the Russian Tsar Alexander III, who died in 1894, so he could not get to know the bridge, and it was his son, Tsar Nicholas II who laid the foundation stone of the bridge in 1896. The bridge symbolizes the union in the Franco-Russian alliance and stands as a historical and artistic monument. Its Art Nouveau design includes elaborately decorated bronze lanterns, golden Pegasus statues and other ornamentation that contribute to its unique aesthetics. This bridge is not only a convenient crossing over the Seine River, but also a special place that offers panoramic views of Paris, including the Eiffel Tower and the Invalides.

The Alexandre III Bridge not only serves as an important link between the Champs Elysees and the Grand Palais, but also represents an architectural landmark commemorating the friendship between nations. The statues of Pegasus at the ends of the bridge, along with the intricate decorations and details, contribute to its grandeur and historical significance. This bridge remains an essential landmark in Paris, where engineering combines with artistic elegance to create a visual and cultural experience, now considered a World Heritage Site, within the Seine Riverbanks ensemble.

Fence 5 – Dune du Pilat
Blue and beige

The "Dune du Pilat" is an impressive sand dune located on the southwest coast of France, near the town of Arcachon. It is the largest and highest sand dune in Europe and is part of the Landes region of Gascony. It is located at the entrance of the bay of Arcachon and offers unique and spectacular views of the Atlantic Ocean, the bay and the surrounding forests.

Its origin spans thousands of years, due to geological and climatic processes in the Landes region of Gascony. During periods of climate change and fluctuating sea levels, marine sediments, including sand, were deposited in the area. Over time, the prevailing winds transported the sand inland, gradually forming a dune. Vegetation, especially maritime pines, played a crucial role in stabilizing the dune by anchoring the sand with their roots.

The city of Arcachon, meanwhile, is a popular seaside destination known for its elegant architecture and charming atmosphere. The city is famous for its beach, its harbor, and its oysters, which are a local specialty.

Arcachon is known for its natural beauty and pleasant climate.

And the "Dune du Pilat" is an outstanding natural site in France, which in turn is known for its coastal charm and tourist attractions, all over the world.

The history of ballet in Paris began in the 17th century, when Jean-Baptiste Lully and Pierre Beauchamp laid the foundations at the court of Louis XIV. The creation of the Académie Royale de Danse in 1661 and the inauguration of the Paris Opera in 1875 marked fundamental milestones. These events contributed to the formalization of dance techniques and consolidated Paris as a world epicenter of classical ballet.

In the 20th century, the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, directed by Serge Diaghilev, played a leading role on the Parisian stage, introducing innovations. After World War II, ballet experienced a resurgence, and the arrival of Rudolf Nureyev in 1960 as director of the Paris Opera ballet marked a golden era. His collaboration with Margot Fonteyn contributed to the international prestige of the Parisian ballet.

Today, Paris remains a vibrant cultural center for ballet, where classical tradition merges with contemporary experimentation. From the Académie Royale de Danse to current explorations, the history of ballet in Paris reflects a rich artistic evolution that has left an indelible mark on the world dance scene.

Fence 7 – Tour Eiffel
Grey and black

The Eiffel Tower, an architectural masterpiece designed by Gustave Eiffel, is in the heart of Paris and is one of the most recognized icons in the world. It was built over a period of about two years for the Universal Exposition of 1889, celebrating the centenary of the French Revolution. The construction of the tower was initially full of controversy, received a multitude of criticisms, but quickly gained global appreciation and became a distinctive symbol of the City of Light.

The 324-meter-high iron lattice structure offers an unparalleled panoramic view of Paris from its three publicly accessible levels. Visitors from around the world ascend in elevators or take the stairs to enjoy the observation decks, each offering a unique perspective of the city, its iconic monuments, its wide boulevards and the Seine River meandering through the metropolis.

At night, it is spectacularly illuminated, the Eiffel Tower becomes a dazzling spectacle of flashing lights, adding a magical dimension to its visual impact. Not only is it a historical monument, but it also serves a practical function by housing transmission antennas and offers gastronomic experiences in its restaurants on the upper levels. With its timeless elegance and ability to evoke awe, the Eiffel Tower remains a magnet for lovers of architecture, history and the beauty of Paris.

The variable height of the Eiffel Tower should be contrasted every day, because depending on the temperature the Eiffel Tower measures a little more or a little less, as a metal structure that is, it experiences a reaction to temperatures that causes the steel to expand in summer and contract in winter. Gustave Eiffel designed it taking into account this phenomenon and calculated for it a ratio of 70 cm of oscillation (35 cm of expansion and 35 cm of contraction), a point that has never been reached, the maximum heights being: 18 centimetres of expansion during a heat wave in 1976 and 13 centimeters of contraction during a storm in 1999.

Fence 8 – Notre Dame
Blue, purple and beige

Notre-Dame Cathedral, located on the Île de la Cité, is a masterpiece of Gothic architecture that has played a central role in the history of France. Its construction began in 1163 and was completed in the 14th century, making it the most visited French monument. Designed by Bishop Maurice de Sully, the cathedral was conceived as an impressive testimony to the Catholic faith and a symbol of the greatness of Paris.

Over the centuries, Notre-Dame has witnessed significant historical events. During the French Revolution, the cathedral suffered damages and transformations, and some of its religious elements were destroyed. However, it was restored in the 19th century under the direction of architect Eugène Viollet-le-Duc, who added decorative details and rebuilt parts of the structure.

The cathedral achieved worldwide fame thanks to the novel "Our Lady of Paris" by Victor Hugo, published in 1831, which led to a renewed appreciation for its architecture. In addition, road distances from Paris in France are calculated from point 0 in the cathedral courtyard.

Unfortunately, on April 15, 2019, a devastating fire that rocked the world destroyed the central spire and part of the roof, although the main structure survived.

Restoration efforts since then have been aimed at restoring Notre-Dame to its splendor and preserving its architectural and cultural legacy for future generations.

Fence 9 – Jardin à la Française
Green and beige

The "jardins à la française" are French gardens designed in the 17th and 18th centuries, known for their rigorous symmetry, raised flower beds with intricate geometric designs, and a combination of architectural and landscape elements. These gardens reflect the influence of classical art and Italian Renaissance architecture, noted for their elegance and order. Characterized by central axes, linear perspectives, statuary, and symbolic elements, French gardens are a testament to the sophistication and aesthetic refinement that defined the era.

A paradigmatic example of this style is the Garden of Versailles, created by André Le Nôtre for the Palace of Versailles during the reign of Louis XIV. This iconic garden, with its tree-lined avenues, elaborate parterres and allegorical symbolism, has left a lasting mark on garden design worldwide, influencing contemporary appreciation of formal beauty and landscape planning.

Fence 10a – Cinema
Black, yellow and black

The first forays into cinema took place in the 19th century in the United States and France, but it was in 1892 that the Frenchman Emile Reynaud introduced the fundamental concept of cinema: projecting films on a giant screen for the public to appreciate. At that time, films consisted mainly of animated images, marking the beginning of cinematic cartoons.

The Lumière brothers, Auguste and Louis, pioneers in the history of cinema, in 1895 triggered a revolution in presenting a series of animated photographs and later ventured into video recording with actors, giving rise to the first short films, each lasting less than a minute. Finally, in 1899, they projected the film "Cendrillon" with a duration of 6 minutes, a breakthrough for the time.

Until that time, French cinema remained in the realm of silent films, but in 1929, technological progress allowed the arrival of sound films, greatly increasing the expectation in theaters, marking a new era in film history.

Jacques Tati, the prominent French filmmaker and actor born in 1907, left an indelible mark on the history of cinema with his distinctive approach to visual comedy. Known for his recurring character, Monsieur Hulot, a bumbling but well-meaning man, Tati was noted for his ability to generate humor through everyday situations and his meticulous attention to visual detail. In his work, "Mon Oncle, the plot follows Hulot as he interacts with his nephew, who lives in an ultra-modern house. The film highlights the contrast between Hulot's charming and chaotic world and the rigidity of modern life. Recognized for its visual wit, the film won the Academy Award for Best Foreign Film in 1959, cementing Tati's position as an innovator in film comedy, and his works are highly influential in film comedy worldwide.

French cinema today remains relevant with leading directors such as Olivier Assayas and Céline Sciamma, while the Cannes Film Festival and the César Awards are key events that celebrate and recognize excellence in the industry. Cannes, one of the most prestigious festivals, awards the coveted Palme d'Or, while the César, the most prominent awards in France, cover several categories. In addition, the Lumière Awards and the French Film Critics' Syndicate Awards also contribute to the recognition of French cinema nationally and internationally, consolidating its position as a continuous source of innovation and cinematographic excellence.

The Provence region, located in the southeast of France, is famous, among other things, for its extensive lavender fields. These fields are an iconic feature of Provence, attracting visitors from all over the world with their vibrant colors and fragrant landscapes.

The lavender season generally reaches its peak in the summer, especially in the months of June and July. In addition to being visually stunning, lavender fields are also prized for their distinctive aroma. Visitors often enjoy strolling through the fields, and their unique fragrance emanating from the lavender flowers, making them a major tourist attraction in the area.

The transformation of the landscape of Provence's lavender fields offers spectacular views, with expanses of purple lavender stretching as far as the eye can see, creating an unforgettable visual spectacle.

Some outstanding areas to experience the beauty of lavender fields include the Luberon Regional Natural Park region, the Plateau de Valensole and the Sault region

Fence 12 – Cabines de plage

The history of beach cabins is closely linked to the history of sea bathing, which started to become fashionable in the 19th century. These wooden (or cloth) cabins were at first mobile, placed on top of horse-drawn carts. Their purpose was to allow bathers to change without being seen, to store deck chairs, umbrellas, towels and beach equipment, or to protect themselves from the wind.

White or colored, single-colored or striped, private or public, the cabins are part of the image of Normandy's seaside vacations.

There are many specimens that make the landscape of the Normandy coastline unique:

- in the dunes of Gouville, the 70 cabins with multicolored roofs are part of the postcard of this seaside village, destroyed during the Second World War.
- the cabins on the beach of Yport have a very harmonious marine look, white with black and blue stripes, among the most beautiful of the Alabaster coast.
- Deauville has 450 Art Deco-style bathing cabins, designed by the architect Charles Adda, who, in the 1920s, imagined the "Pompeian baths". Inspired by the Roman baths.
- Trouville with its beach cabins, which date back to 1939 has retained the image of a resort town.
- the 700 beach cabins in Le Havre that regained their initial 100% white appearance, painted in color between 2017 and 2021 by Dutch artist Karel Martens.

The Frenchman René Lalique, born in 1860, excelled as a jeweler and master glassmaker, being a leading exponent of the Art Nouveau movement. His talent led him to the creation of innovative jewelry and glass objects. In the late nineteenth century, Lalique ventured into perfumery, collaborating with François Coty in fragrances whose bottles designed by himself became works of art.

This milestone marked the beginning of his unique contribution to the fusion of glass art and perfumery in France, reflecting the distinctive elegance and craftsmanship of Lalique's work. His legacy lives on in the world of luxury and perfumery, upholding the tradition of exquisite design and quality craftsmanship.

René Lalique left his mark on the history of art, jewelry and perfumery with his innovative vision by fusing aesthetics with function in his creations.

French perfumes have played a crucial role in the global fragrance industry, with France being the cradle of luxury perfumery. The importance lies in the long tradition of master craftsmanship and expertise in the creation of fragrances that has characterized this country. French perfume houses have set exceptional standards in the quality and complexity of perfumes and bottle design, excelling in sophistication and elegance.

The ability of French perfume houses to adapt to changing trends, while maintaining the tradition of the art of perfumery, has contributed significantly to France's leading position in the industry, being a benchmark in the world of high-quality perfumes.

Fence 14 – Vinification

Originating in the Near East, wine arrived in France with the Greek colonization and gained momentum after the Roman conquest, beginning in the 1st century AD.

This process begins with the grape harvest, where the best moment is carefully selected to obtain a perfect balance of sugars and acidity in the grapes. After destemming and pressing, the resulting must undergo fermentation, a critical step where yeasts transform the sugars, giving rise to the wine. This process can vary in containers such as stainless- steel tanks or oak barrels, depending on the type of wine being produced.

Barrel aging is a common stage in French winemaking, adding complexity and nuances to the wine. Some regions practice the art of blending, mixing grape varieties to achieve complex and balanced wines. Once the optimum point is reached, the wine is bottled.

What distinguishes winemaking in France is regional diversity. From the elegance of Burgundy wines to the complexity of Bordeaux reds, each wine region has its own characteristics, practices and regulations. This unique approach and the influence of terroir result in some of the most renowned and appreciated wines in the world, cementing France's position as a wine powerhouse.

Description of Fences

Description des obstacles

Fence 1 – Paris 2024

Fence 2 – Colonne Morris

The classic advertising columns found in the streets of Paris and in some other cities of France, take their name from the French painter and typographer Gabriel Morris, who introduced them in Paris after obtaining the concession in 1868 in order to advertise the many shows that began to emerge in the city in the Second Empire. Configured in the same style as the kiosks in the form of a cylinder of cast iron in dark green, with a canopy in the form of a canopy, under a small dome decorated with scales, to protect the posters from the rain.

Maison Morris took over the monopoly of the advertising columns, covering the costs of their construction and of the posters, dedicated to cultural programming, although these structures were invented in Germany by Ernst Litfass, and used for public announcements in 1854.

Although advertising columns have evolved and diversified over time, the term "Colonne Morris" is still commonly used to refer to these structures. In addition to their advertising function, to promote events, films, shows and other items of public interest, Morris' columns are also considered iconic elements of the Parisian cityscape, contributing to the distinctive character of the city.

Fence 3 – Mont Blanc

The summit of Mont Blanc, the culminating granite mountain of the Alps, despite certain differences according to cartographic sources, is a summit shared between Italy and France, following a bilateral agreement signed in 1860, the Treaty of Turin, in which the summit of Mont Blanc was divided between the two states, following the watershed.

It is the highest summit in Western Europe, the highest point of the European Union with an official altitude of 4807.81 meters above sea level, according to the latest measurement of 2021, although accurately, it is lower still, since its rocky top, 15 meters difference occupied by a layer of perpetual ice, which covers the head of the alpine colossus and varies each season.

According to the historical record, which dates back to the 19th century, the mountain has done nothing but decrease in size since then, with an average reduction in height of 21 centimeters per year, a phenomenon that affects the ice masses that cover the regions of the earth's surface, affected by global warming.

The Mer de Glace, the most important glacier of the Mont Blanc massif and the third largest in the Alps, which has shrunk two and a half kilometers and 200 meters thick since 1860. It has become a laboratory for climate change, as its glaciers are retreating.

The thawing of permafrost, the permanently frozen topsoil layer that has held the rock together for thousands of years like glue, is causing enormous changes in the orography and landscape of the mountain range, and dramatically so in the Mont Blanc massif.

The Mont Blanc massif was the starting point of mountaineering, whose expeditions began in the 18th century. In 1786, a guide and a doctor from Chamonix, equipped with rudimentary equipment, were the first to crown the mythical summit, known by the inhabitants of the region as the Accursed Mountain. The expedition set itself the goal of knowing the altitude and offered a reward to the first to find a way to the summit and succeed in ascending Mont Blanc for the first time. This challenge was the trigger for the first ascent of Mont Blanc and the birth of modern mountaineering. The first woman to reach the summit was Marie Paradis, on July 14, 1808, accompanying Jacques Balmat.

Fence 4 – Protection des océans

Jacques-Yves Cousteau was a famous French oceanographer, explorer, filmmaker and scientist. He was born on June 11, 1910, and died on June 25, 1997. Cousteau was a pioneer in underwater research and played a crucial role in the conservation and protection of the oceans.

Cousteau co-invented the modern diving regulator with Émile Gagnan, which allowed divers to explore the ocean depths more safely and efficiently. He also founded the Cousteau Society in 1973, an organization dedicated to marine conservation and ocean research.

Throughout his life, Cousteau led numerous underwater expeditions and produced a series of documentaries and television programs, such as the famous "The World of Silence" series. These works raised public awareness of the beauty and importance of the oceans, as well as the challenges they face due to pollution and exploitation.

Cousteau advocated for the protection of the oceans and the preservation of marine life, and his legacy lives on through the continuing work of the Cousteau Society and other organizations dedicated to marine conservation. His contribution to underwater exploration and environmental awareness has left a lasting mark on the history of oceanography and ocean conservation.

Fence 5ab – Art déco

In the context of the Belle Époque and the interwar period, the Art Deco movement emerged as a stylistic response to the ornamental excess of Art Nouveau. This style, characterized by geometric lines, simplified forms and the use of modern materials, left a profound mark on the city's architecture and design. Landmark buildings such as the Théâtre des Champs-Élysées, inaugurated in 1913, and the Palais de Chaillot, built for the 1937 International Exposition, epitomize the elegance and modernity of Art Deco in Paris.

This movement not only influenced architecture, but also left its mark on interior design and decoration. Clean-lined furniture, geometric lamps and ornate details became distinctive elements of the Art Deco aesthetic, fusing luxury and functionality. In addition, the urban expansion of Paris during this era led to the creation of grand avenues flanked by Art Deco buildings, representing the progressive spirit of the city.

Although Art Deco lost its prominence after World War II, its influence persists in Parisian architecture. Many buildings from this era contribute to the rich stylistic diversity and unique architectural charm of the French capital.

Fence 5ab – Art déco

Fence 6 – Boules de neige

Parisian tourism plays an important role in the city's economy and identity. Paris is recognized worldwide for its rich history, impressive architecture and artistic and cultural contribution. Emblematic monuments such as Notre-Dame Cathedral and the Château de Montmartre are cornerstones of this tourist attraction.

Notre-Dame Cathedral, an iconic symbol of Gothic architecture and a major cultural center, attracts millions of visitors annually. The reconstruction of Notre-Dame, following its fire in 2019, has also generated renewed international interest and solidarity.

Monumental and romantic, the cathedral of Notre Dame is the most famous church in Paris, and it has been the royal events and literary odes that have made Parisians leave a small place in their hearts for her. Within its Gothic walls passed the greatest of the Middle Ages to celebrate victories and state funerals, centuries later hosted the coronation of the Grand Corsican as emperor of France, and on its roofs, Victor Hugo placed the hunchback Quasimodo. But it was during the French Revolution when the cathedral lived its most agitated hours, with the irruption of the people in it, who decapitated dozens of sculptures, those who wore crowns with special emphasis, despite being biblical kings, to turn it into the temple of the goddess reason. The disk that marks the zero kilometer of Paris, le Point Zéro, and at the same time the official point of the road network of France, is located in front of the monumental Notre Dame Cathedral, on the Île de la Cité.

On the other hand, the Château de Montmartre, located on Montmartre hill, is another iconic place in France, which offers a unique view of the history of the city, contributing to its tourist attraction.

These monuments, along with other landmarks, are essential to the tourist experience in Paris, attracting visitors from around the world and providing cultural and economic wealth to the city. This tourist attraction means ample trade for local sellers of souvenirs, including snow globes. These souvenirs popular with tourists contain miniature replicas of iconic landmarks such as the Eiffel Tower, the Château de Montmartre or Notre-Dame, offering visitors a charming way to take the Parisian experience with them. In addition to being tangible souvenirs, these snow globes act as collectible symbols of a visit to France.

Fence 7 – Le système Braille

Braille is a tactile writing system in which every letter, every number and even every musical, mathematical and scientific symbol is represented by a combination of six raised dots.

The Braille system was invented by Louis Braille, who was born on January 4, 1809, in Coupvray, France. He was a French educator and musician who lost his sight at an early age due to an accident. Despite his visual impairment, Braille showed remarkable determination and intellectual ability from a young age, as, at the early age of 15, in 1824, he developed this very important system, greatly simplifying the precedents, which facilitated its dissemination.

Thanks to this tactile language configuration, it has been possible to provide blind and visually impaired people with access to education, culture, information, and the removal of all kinds of "visual" barriers in urban environments.

Fence 8 – New pictogram

Seeking to avoid conventional representations of each sport, the pictograms designed for Paris 2024 take the form of a "coat of arms", serving as a distinctive symbol for each discipline.

These eye-catching designs incorporate three fundamental graphic elements: an X-shaped axis of symmetry, a representation of the field of play and specific elements that characterize each sport. The designers worked closely with the international federations, ensuring precision down to the smallest details of the various pictograms. This evolution aims to generate a more emotive symbol, transcending the mere visual representation of the sport. In total, 62 "badges" have been created to cover the various Olympic and Paralympic disciplines.

The introduction of pictograms to illustrate each sport dates back to the Tokyo 1964 Olympic Games, while the first pictograms for the Paralympic Games appeared for the first time in Barcelona 1992. The previous edition already sought to innovate in this respect, incorporating the first ever animated icons designed by Masaaki Hiromura. This continuous effort to evolve pictograms highlights the importance of these visual symbols in the dynamic and emotive representation of sports in Olympic and Paralympic events.

Fence 9 – Toulouse Lautrec

Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, a prominent French painter and poster artist of the late 19th century, born on November 24, 1864, in Albi, France, and died on September 9, 1901, left a lasting mark on the world of art and culture.

His work is characterized by capturing the bohemian life and nightlife of Paris during the Belle Époque, a time of relative peace and prosperity in Europe between the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He was particularly noted for his depictions of cabarets, theaters and brothels, with the Moulin Rouge being one of the most iconic places immortalized in his works.

Toulouse-Lautrec was known for his style, which combined vibrant colors and expressive lines. In addition to his artistic skill, he also excelled as a poster artist, depicting advertising posters that have become iconic works of art of the time.

Despite his short life, his artistic legacy has endured, and Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec has had a great influence on the development of modern art, especially in the field of poster art and the representation of urban life.

Restoration efforts since then have been aimed at restoring Notre-Dame to its splendor and preserving its architectural and cultural legacy for future generations.

Fence 10abc – Champs Elysées

The Champs Elysées, one of the most famous avenues in the world and most famous of Paris, which welcomes about 300,000 visitors per day. With 1910m long and 70 m wide, it extends from the Place de la Concorde to the Place de Charles De Gaulle, where it culminates with the perspective of the imposing Arc de Triomphe. The famous avenue was originally a swamp, and its construction as one of the first parks of the city, began in 1640, with the alignment of trees in continuity with the Tuileries Palace and the Louvre Museum, and with the layout designed by André Le Nôtre, gardener architect of the Sun King.

This tree-lined avenue has become more beautiful with each passing decade, a symbol of Parisian elegance and culture. Along its two kilometers, the Champs-Elysées is home to luxury boutiques, French brands, prestigious theaters such as the Théâtre des Champs-Élysées, refined restaurants and significant events, including parades and festivities to celebrate the New Year.

The classical architecture and sophistication of the avenue merge with the bustling commercial and cultural life, creating a unique atmosphere. The culmination of this majestic avenue is the iconic Arc de Triomphe, from where panoramic views of the city can be enjoyed. The Champs Elysées encapsulates the essence of Parisian glamour, attracting visitors from all over the world with its timeless charm and its contribution to the cultural and touristic richness of Paris.

The Champs Elysées are still evolving, and currently with the idea of returning the avenue to the use and enjoyment of Parisians, a major renovation project is being developed to gain pedestrian areas and transform it into an extraordinary garden.

Fence 11 – Porcelaine de Limoges

Limoges' porcelain is produced in the Limoges region of central France. It has been known for centuries for its quality and fine, detailed craftsmanship and has played an important role in the history of ceramics and porcelain.

The porcelain tradition in Limoges dates to the 18th century. During this period, deposits of kaolin were discovered in the region, a key component in the manufacture of porcelain. This discovery led to the development of the porcelain industry in this region. And some of the best-known factories include Haviland, Bernardaud and Raynaud.

Limoges' porcelain has been used for a variety of purposes, from tableware to decorative objects and fine gifts. Recognizing authentic Limoges' porcelain is simple: all objects from the French house bear the maker's stamp and their decoration often includes floral motifs, landscape scenes and gilded elements.

It is also highly appreciated by collectors around the world and its pieces are sought after by those who appreciate beauty and quality in ceramics.

Fence 12 – Paris 2024 pattern

Fence 13 – Opéra Garnier

Opera in France was introduced in the 17th century, initially with performances of Italian opera at the court of Anne of Austria. Jean-Baptiste Lully, an Italian composer, played a pivotal role in establishing a distinctively French operatic style and collaborating with Molière in the integration of music and scene. The founding of the Opéra Royal de Paris in 1669 by Louis XIV cemented the prominent position of French opera in European culture, leaving a significant mark on the history of music and the performing arts. Paris is a leading operatic epicenter, home to iconic theaters such as the Opéra Garnier and the Opéra Bastille.

Napoleon III on the occasion of the great works of remodeling and transformation of the city by Haussmann, commissioned a young and unknown architect the new opera house, becoming the thirteenth opera house in Paris after its foundation by King Louis XIV in 1669. After 15 years of construction, it was inaugurated in 1875, and the architect Charles Garnier eventually gave his name to the building. His acoustic studies and vision requirements shaped the horseshoe shape of the main hall, transforming it into one of the iconic opera houses. The Opéra Garnier marked a new architectural trend that spread throughout the world under the name of Beaux Arts.

The original ceiling of the dome of the central auditorium, painted in 1875, was transformed by the painter Marc Chagall, who incorporated great opera composers in a singular universe, and is a multicolored impact. Carefully placed over the original paintings, its inauguration in 1964 left no one indifferent, but it is now, with some perspective, that the bold contrast between the painting and its aristocratic surroundings can be appreciated.

French composers such as Georges Bizet and Jules Massenet have contributed to the international operatic repertoire with works such as "Carmen" and "Manon", and Jacques Offenbach, with his masterpiece "The Tales of Hoffmann", is an example of the richness and diversity of the French operatic repertoire, which is characterized by its fusion of dramatic and lyrical elements, incorporating ballets and elaborate choruses. Comic opera, which has flourished in France, stands out for its mixture of comedy and lyrical music.

France hosts renowned opera festivals, such as the Aix-en-Provence Festival and the Montpellier Opera Festival, which attract artists and opera lovers from around the world. Institutions such as the Opéra National de Paris and the Opéra Comique play a crucial role in preserving and promoting opera in the country, ensuring that this art form remains vibrant and accessible to current and future generations.

Fence 14 – Le petit prince

The Little Prince is a novel, known for its poetic approach and illustrations by the French author Antoine de Saint- Exupéry himself. It was published in 1943 and has become one of the most translated and best-selling works of world literature, with readers of all ages. The prominent writer and aviator was born in 1900 in Lyon, France. A pioneering commercial aviation pilot, Saint-Exupéry channeled his experiences in the sky into his writings, fusing poetry with an exploration of the human condition.

Saint-Exupéry's life was cut short during World War II, but his legacy lives on in both literature and aviation history.

The story follows an aviator who crashes in the Sahara desert and finds a little prince who comes from another planet. As the aviator repairs his plane, the little prince shares his experiences, anecdotes and reflections on life, love, innocence and human nature.

Fence 1 – Olympic Games 2024

Olympic Games 1900, the first to be held in Paris, and noted for its long duration, extending from May 14 to October 28, for its diversity of sports, which included not only traditional disciplines such as athletics and cycling, but also peculiar events such as cricket, croquet, golf and "Pelota Vasca". In addition, it was the first time that women participated in the Olympic Games, with the victory of British tennis player Charlotte Cooper standing out. However, the complexity together with the long duration of the events, marked these Games as unique in their history, contributing to the subsequent evolution of the event.

Olympic Games 1924 marked the eighth edition of the modern era. This event was important for several reasons, including the debut of the Olympic flag with the five interlocking rings, symbolizing the union of the continents. France, as the host country, stood out in the medal standings, leading in the number of gold medals. In addition, these games marked the debut of women in athletics and swimming competitions. Technological innovation also played an important role, with live broadcasting of events via radio, allowing a wider audience to follow the sports competitions. The 1924 Paris Olympics are therefore known for their organization, innovation and significant increase in international participation.

Olympic Games 2024 Paris will host this year's XXXIII Summer Olympic Games, with the intention of becoming the most sustainable and eco-responsible games, giving importance to immersive experiences, with several participatory events for the public, taking place in the heart of Paris, making the most of the potential and historical significance of the city, so that the Champs Elysées will host cycling, Champs de Mars will host beach volleyball, the Seine River itself will be transformed into an Olympic swimming pool, triathlon events under the Eiffel Tower, skateboarding in the Place de la Concorde, tennis at Roland Garros, venues for various disciplines in Versailles, Les Invalides, Grand Palais, in the Arena Bercy... And at the same time sharing the development of the Games with venues all over France, reaching Marseille with sailing and even Tahiti with surfing. In Paris, a new Olympic sport, break dancing, will become an Olympic sport for the first time in history.

Fence 2 – Ambiance parisienne

The Parisian ambiance encapsulates the unique and distinctive essence of Paris, due to the city's rich history and culture,

Parisian cafés are known for their cozy atmosphere and classic aesthetic, with wicker chairs and sidewalk tables that invite you to enjoy a coffee while watching life go by. Iconic establishments such as Café de Flore and Les Deux Magots in the Latin Quarter are emblematic of this tradition.

Bistros, on the other hand, are small, informal restaurants that serve homemade French cuisine. These places are known for offering traditional dishes such as cassoulet, coq au vin and bouillabaisse in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere. Many Parisian bistros have maintained their vintage charm and focus on the authenticity of the dining experience, making them popular spots for both locals and visitors looking to enjoy authentic French cuisine. The origin of the bistros' name lies in the invasion of the Place du Tertre in Montmartre by the Cossacks in 1814, who came running to the establishments asking for alcohol. As they were not allowed to drink, they urged the waiter saying: 'bistro, bistro' which in Russian means: 'quick, quick', as they did not want to be caught by the officers with their elbows out during service hours.

The mythical café terraces with their chairs lined up in parallel, not part of the street furniture per se, but characteristic of the Parisian landscape, all placed in the same direction and facing the street, perfect for the Parisian sport of 'flâner'.

The chair is made of a rattan grill back combined with shapes and colors depending on the style of the brasserie. The tables, called bistro tables, usually have a central black iron leg and a round marble plate. The classic Thonet No.14 or 'bistro chair', made of wood with a slatted seat, was created in 1859 by the eponymous German furniture designer, following a unique technique of steam bending wood that required years of refinement. This design won a gold medal at the 1867 Paris World Exposition.

Over the years coffee became popular among the upper classes, as did chocolate, which created a demand that was met by the first coffee shop in Paris, which opened its doors in 1686 in the Saint-Germain-des-Prés district under the name of Le Procope. Although it was a Sicilian named Procopo, and not a Frenchman, who had the brilliant idea. Only a decade later, coffee shops had already multiplied by 200 throughout the city, thanks to the fact that coffee was more affordable than chocolate and that the middle class became addicted to it.

Fence 3 – Montgolfier

The best-known flights, considered as the origin of aerostation, are those of Montgolfier's in France, Joseph Michel and Jacques Etienne, who belonged to a dynasty of paper manufacturers from Annonay, south of Lyon. It has been reported that in 1782, when 42-year-old Joseph was in Annonay, south of Lyon, watching a woman's shirt float in the air by the action of a fire, he concluded that hot air lifted things up. Then, accompanied by his brother Etienne Jacques, 37, he proved that hot air or hydrogen were perfectly retained by a silk sheath. These principles had already been formulated 2000 years earlier in Syracuse by Archimedes, the inventor of incendiary bombs. According to Archimedes, a balloon or any other vehicle containing a substance lighter than air would rise until its weight was equal to the surrounding atmosphere.

King Louis XVI, fond of science and technical advances, demanded a demonstration at Versailles. It was scheduled for September 19, 1783. Jacques Montgolfier worked side by side with his friend Jean-Baptiste Réveillon, a paper manufacturer, on the design of a varnished taffeta balloon. In this model, the balloon had a wicker basket attached to it, which housed a sheep, a duck and a rooster. These animals were to be the first aeronauts. After three hours of inflation, the balloon lifted off with its cargo. After about ten minutes of flight and three kilometers of travel, it landed safely with its crew.

The only thing left to do was to take the risk of flying in a balloon. An ambitious and charismatic physicist, Jean-François Pilâtre de Rozier, proved to be cold-blooded enough to do so. On October 19, together with the Marquis François Laurent d'Arlandes, he climbed to 100 meters. Shortly after, they performed the feat again, this time in front of Louis XVI. After almost half an hour of flight and nearly ten kilometers of travel, at a maximum altitude of close to one thousand meters, they landed in Butte-aux-Cailles (today a suburb of Paris). The first flight manned by humans was a success.

The Montgolfier's made a public demonstration of their invention on June 4, 1783, on the outskirts of Annonay. They designed a paper-lined linen balloon, which they filled with more than six hundred cubic meters of hot air by burning wet straw and wool in braziers. It took eight men to hold the contraption, which was 11 meters in diameter. When it was released, it rose rapidly to an altitude of 1,800 meters. During the nearly ten minutes it remained in the sky, it moved nearly two kilometers.

Fence 4 – Contes de Charles Perrault

The collection of fairy tales written by Charles Perrault in the 17th century are classics of children's literature and are part of the legacy of French popular literature and have influenced many later adaptations in different forms of media, such as books, films and plays. Some of their most famous tales include Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty, Puss in Boots and Little Red Riding Hood. Charles Perrault's version of Little Red Riding Hood is notable for its moralizing tone. In this story, Little Red Riding Hood, naive and disobedient, is seduced by the cunning wolf, who tricks her into revealing the location of her grandmother's house. The story warns of the dangers of disobedience and excessive trust in strangers, culminating in the moral lesson that obedience and prudence are essential virtues in life.

This series of stories are collected in his work "Histoires ou contes de temps passé, avec des moralités" (Stories or tales of times past, with morals), first published in 1697, and which have endured over time.

Fence 5ab – La rue française

In Paris, as in most cities, the urban signs indicating the name of the streets are placed at the end of the roads, usually on the facades. The design of the current plaques was ordered by the Count of Rambuteau in 1847 and is one of the oldest in the world. They are distinguished by their rectangular shape in navy blue enameled metal with a green border and white inscription.

At the top of the plaque, in a semicircle is marked the number of the 'arrondissement' or neighborhood, from 1 to 20. And as an example of cultural city, on many occasions, they indicate a brief description of the character, event or place that they name.

Such is its connection with the cliché image of Paris that there are companies that reproduce personalized plaques as souvenirs.

Fence 5ab – La rue française

Fence 6 – Pont de la Tournelle

The Pont de la Tournelle, located in Paris, is a charming bridge that crosses the Seine River. Built in 1928 in reinforced concrete, replacing the previous wooden model, due to its discomfort when navigating the river. Its distinctive architecture includes two towers and ornate lampposts that make it a visual jewel in the Parisian landscape. This bridge not only offers a convenient crossing between the 4th and 5th arrondissements, but also provides a picturesque platform to enjoy panoramic views of the Seine River, the Île de la Cité and the iconic Notre-Dame Cathedral. The Tournelle Bridge, on the small branch of the Seine, is located upstream of the Archevêché Bridge and the Saint Louis Bridge, downstream of the Sully Bridge.

In addition, the Pont de la Tournelle features a sculpture of Saint Geneviève, patron saint of Paris on its left side. The combination of unique architectural elements, panoramic views and artistic elements makes the Pont de la Tournelle not only an essential crossing point but also a charming site that contributes to the rich history and aesthetics of Paris.

Fence 7 – Tour Eiffel

The Eiffel Tower, an architectural masterpiece designed by Gustave Eiffel, is in the heart of Paris and is one of the most recognized icons in the world. It was built over a period of about two years for the Universal Exposition of 1889, celebrating the centenary of the French Revolution. The construction of the tower was initially full of controversy, received a multitude of criticisms, but quickly gained global appreciation and became a distinctive symbol of the City of Light.

The 324-meter-high iron lattice structure offers an unparalleled panoramic view of Paris from its three publicly accessible levels. Visitors from around the world ascend in elevators or take the stairs to enjoy the observation decks, each offering a unique perspective of the city, its iconic monuments, its wide boulevards and the Seine River meandering through the metropolis.

At night, it is spectacularly illuminated, the Eiffel Tower becomes a dazzling spectacle of flashing lights, adding a magical dimension to its visual impact. Not only is it a historical monument, but it also serves a practical function by housing transmission antennas and offers gastronomic experiences in its restaurants on the upper levels. With its timeless elegance and ability to evoke awe, the Eiffel Tower remains a magnet for lovers of architecture, history and the beauty of Paris.

The variable height of the Eiffel Tower should be contrasted every day, because depending on the temperature the Eiffel Tower measures a little more or a little less, as a metal structure that is, it experiences a reaction to temperatures that causes the steel to expand in summer and contract in winter. Gustave Eiffel designed it taking into account this phenomenon and calculated for it a ratio of 70 cm of oscillation (35 cm of expansion and 35 cm of contraction), a point that has never been reached, the maximum heights being: 18 centimeters of expansion during a heat wave in 1976 and 13 centimeters of contraction during a storm in 1999.

Fence 8 – Horloge d'Orsay

"Horloge d'Orsay," the clock on the façade of the Musée d'Orsay, has become the hallmark and one of the most recognizable architectural features of the museum, which was originally built as a train station, the Gare d'Orsay, for the Universal Exhibition of 1900. It served as a terminus for short-distance trains to the southwest of France.

However, in the 1930s, the station became obsolete for modern trains and was threatened with demolition because it threatened ruin in 1973. Instead, in the 1980s, it was transformed into the Musée d'Orsay, dedicated mainly to the visual arts produced in the period from 1848 to 1914.

Although the upper station has disappeared today, railway activity continues underneath the museum, because underground we can get off at the Musée d'Orsay station of the Regional Express Network, RER.

The museum houses some of the most significant works of the Victorian period and the transition to modernism. Among these are:

Edouard Monet with "Breakfast on the Grass" and "Olympia" by, defying the artistic conventions of his time. Gustave Courbet brings his bold realism with "The Piano Lesson" and "The Origin of the World".

Vincent van Gogh, although not belonging to the Victorian period, adds his genius with "Starry Night on the Rhone".

The clock of the Musée d'Orsay is located on the left side of the museum's main façade, facing the Seine River. Its distinctive design, with Roman numerals and wrought iron hands, has become an iconic symbol of the museum and can be seen from the opposite bank of the river and from some key points of the city of Paris. It is one of the most photographed sites in the city. This clock, along with the unique architecture of the building, contributes to the charm of the Musée d'Orsay and its importance as one of the most prominent museums in the city.

In the jump we wanted to contrast the large scale of the clock from the inside against the small scale within the composition of the facade of the museum. Its interior view has also become a strong tourist attraction due to the spectacular views that can be seen through the dial of the enormous clock façade.

Fence 9 – Notre Dame

Notre-Dame Cathedral, located on the Île de la Cite, is a masterpiece of Gothic architecture that has played a central role in the history of France. Its construction began in 1163 and was completed in the 14th century, making it the most visited French monument. Designed by Bishop Maurice de Sully, the cathedral was conceived as an impressive testimony to the Catholic faith and a symbol of the greatness of Paris.

Over the centuries, Notre-Dame has witnessed significant historical events. During the French Revolution, the cathedral suffered damages and transformations, and some of its religious elements were destroyed. However, it was restored in the 19th century under the direction of architect Eugène Viollet-le-Duc, who added decorative details and rebuilt parts of the structure.

The cathedral achieved worldwide fame thanks to the novel "Our Lady of Paris" by Victor Hugo, published in 1831, which led to a renewed appreciation for its architecture. In addition, road distances from Paris in France are calculated from point 0 in the cathedral courtyard.

Unfortunately, on April 15, 2019, a devastating fire that rocked the world destroyed the central spire and part of the roof, although the main structure survived.

Restoration efforts since then have been aimed at restoring Notre-Dame to its splendor and preserving its architectural and cultural legacy for future generations.

Fence 10abc – Metropolitan

The "Metropolitain" in France, commonly known as the Paris Metro, is a subway transportation system that has played a crucial role in the life of the French capital since its inauguration in 1900 during the Universal Exhibition. Between 1900 and 1912, 141 entrances designed by Hector Guimard, a pioneer of the Art Nouveau aesthetic, were installed and he transferred that aesthetic and elegance to the entrances, reintegrating organic forms in cast iron into functional objects, characterized by their 'dragonfly wings' and other ornaments such as the Dervaux lampposts.

With an extensive network covering the entire city and its suburbs, the Paris Metro has become one of the oldest and most efficient metro systems in the world. Its distinctive Art Nouveau design, with ornaments, mosaics and architectural details, present in many of its stations, gives it a unique charm that reflects the era of its construction. Today only two of the original entrances designed by Guimard remain, including the "Edicule" type metro entrance, with a fan-shaped glass canopy, resembling dragonfly wings, and the other type of entrance, the "encourage", with two stem-like prongs joined by a sinuous arch and each topped by a bright red sphere. Both entrances have been represented in the triple jump.

The iconographic metro logo, a circle with the word "Métro" inside, is internationally recognized, as is the numbering and color coding assigned to each line to facilitate passenger orientation.

About 80 examples are preserved with two different styles of entrance. That of canopies, of which only two are still in use: Porte Dauphine and the Abbesses entrance. And that of the iron balustrade structure decorated with plant motifs, such as the Louvre-Rivoli, Temple, Denfert-Rochereau or Château-d'Eau. The interior aesthetics have changed over time, initially the walls were covered with white biseauté tiles.

The Metropolitain is not a mere means of transport, it is part of the essence of the French capital, being a cultural and historical element that has contributed significantly to the identity of the city, has left an indelible mark on the culture and literature of Paris, being a frequent setting in films and literary works.

Fence 11 – Tuileries

The Tuileries Gardens, in the heart of Paris, are a historical and landscape treasure. Originally designed by Queen Catherine de Medici in the 16th century and later remodeled by André Le Nôtre, an important 17th century landscape architect. These gardens are notable for their classical French design, with wide paths, flower beds and elegant statuary. The visual connection to the Louvre, one of the world's most iconic museums, adds a significant cultural component, while the lined avenues, serene ponds and sculptures provide an enchanting setting for visitors.

The landscape of the Tuileries Gardens is enriched by numerous sculptures and fountains, including the impressive Medici Fountain.

This green space, surrounded by history and art, also serves as a perfect place to relax and enjoy serenity amidst the hustle and bustle of the city. In addition, the gardens host events and activities throughout the year, providing visitors with opportunities to participate in fairs, concerts and other cultural events, adding vitality to this iconic Parisian public space.

Fence 12ab – Jeu de cartes française

The French deck has its roots in playing cards introduced in Europe from the Islamic world in the 14th century. It experienced influences from the German deck in the design of the suits and the numbering of the cards. In the 16th century, the French deck adopted its current standard design with 52 cards divided into four suits, clubs and spades in black, and hearts and diamonds in red, numbered from 2 to 10, followed by the figures, the Vallet, the Lady or Queen and the King. This structure was consolidated and has remained practically unchanged ever since.

During the 14th century, King Charles VI of France contributed to the popularization of playing cards at the French court due to his own interest in these games. The French deck spread throughout Europe and beyond, becoming the basis for numerous card games in different cultures. Today, the French deck is the most widely used deck in card games around the world, being recognized for its standard design and its historical and cultural importance in the evolution of card games over the centuries.

The uniqueness of the French deck is that it has its own names, such as King David, Charlemagne, Queen Mary of Anjou, Rachel, Judith, biblical characters, such as Vallet, Lancelot and Logger, and is original in the adoption of the female figure (Dame), mainly influenced by French queens and heroines, such as Joan of Arc in the 100 Years' War, against the English.

During the French Revolution, kings became citizens and classical characters, famous French writers, or by symbolism of freedom, equality, ...

Today, the French deck of cards is the protagonist of the most internationally known card games, such as poker, blackjack, bridge or solitaire.

Fence 13 – Haussmann

Georges-Eugène Haussmann was a French urban planner, known for carrying out extensive urban renewal in Paris during the Second Empire under Napoleon III. His work radically transformed the appearance of the city, turning it into the modern Paris we know today.

Haussmann was born on March 27, 1809, in Paris. After law studies, he was appointed Prefect of the Seine Department (which includes Paris) in 1853, and for the next 17 years, he implemented an ambitious urban renewal plan that aimed to improve the infrastructure and appearance of Paris.

The main features of the Haussmann transformation include the creation of wide avenues, such as the Boulevard Haussmann and the Champs-Élysées (which not only provided space for traffic, but also allowed for better air circulation and gave the city a grander appearance). He also created new parks and squares, such as Montsouris Park and Place Saint-Michel, to provide green areas and public spaces for the city's residents. He improved the city's sewage and sanitation system. He built and renovated several public buildings, including theaters, hospitals and schools, thus improving the city's public services. And he imposed certain architectural standards to give Paris a more uniform and elegant appearance.

Haussmann's work left a lasting mark on the French capital, and his influence on urban planning has been felt in cities around the world.

Fence 14 – Alexandre III

The Alexandre III Bridge, built in 1900 for the Universal Exposition in Paris, stands out as one of the most elegant and ornate bridges in the city. Named in honor of the Russian Tsar Alexander III, who died in 1894, so he could not get to know the bridge, and it was his son, Tsar Nicholas II who laid the foundation stone of the bridge in 1896. The bridge symbolizes the union in the Franco-Russian alliance and stands as a historical and artistic monument. Its Art Nouveau design includes elaborately decorated bronze lanterns, golden Pegasus statues and other ornamentation that contribute to its unique aesthetics. This bridge is not only a convenient crossing over the Seine River, but also a special place that offers panoramic views of Paris, including the Eiffel Tower and the Invalides.

The Alexandre III Bridge not only serves as an important link between the Champs Elysees and the Grand Palais, but also represents an architectural landmark commemorating the friendship between nations. The statues of Pegasus at the ends of the bridge, along with the intricate decorations and details, contribute to its grandeur and historical significance. This bridge remains an essential landmark in Paris, where engineering combines with artistic elegance to create a visual and cultural experience, now considered a World Heritage Site, within the Seine Riverbanks ensemble.

Fence 15 – Los Angeles 2028

The next Olympic and Paralympic Games to be held in Los Angeles in 2028 are all about people, from the athletes to the representation of the Los Angeles community. Leveraging the sports infrastructure already in place in Los Angeles, these games seek to elevate the overall experience and generate sustainable benefits in the Southern California region before, during and after 2028.

The comprehensive vision of the LA28 Games goes beyond sports competition. They seek to inspire action and champion ideals, catalyzing programs that benefit the diverse residents of Los Angeles, with a focus on ensuring equitable access to sports for Los Angeles youth.

In addition, the LA28 Games aim to instill a sense of pride in the people of Los Angeles, contributing significantly to the promotion of inclusion, innovation and creativity.

The uniqueness of the logo and emblem of the upcoming sports celebration lies in its dynamic configuration, as it is an animated logo, constantly moving and changing, taking advantage of visual technologies.

It highlights the uniqueness of the dynamic and interchangeable letter "A" in the "LA28" emblem, which will adopt various shapes, designs and colors, thanks to more than 20 people bringing their personal stories to life through an artistic "A", adapting to the moment and the individual identity of each one of them. This approach pays homage to core values such as creativity, diversity, self-expression and inclusion, encapsulating the changing and multifaceted essence of the celebration.

Fence 1 – Olympic Games 2024

Olympic Games 1900, the first to be held in Paris, and noted for its long duration, extending from May 14 to October 28, for its diversity of sports, which included not only traditional disciplines such as athletics and cycling, but also peculiar events such as cricket, croquet, golf and "Pelota Vasca". In addition, it was the first time that women participated in the Olympic Games, with the victory of British tennis player Charlotte Cooper standing out. However, the complexity together with the long duration of the events, marked these Games as unique in their history, contributing to the subsequent evolution of the event.

Olympic Games 1924 marked the eighth edition of the modern era. This event was important for several reasons, including the debut of the Olympic flag with the five interlocking rings, symbolizing the union of the continents. France, as the host country, stood out in the medal standings, leading in the number of gold medals. In addition, these games marked the debut of women in athletics and swimming competitions. Technological innovation also played an important role, with live broadcasting of events via radio, allowing a wider audience to follow the sports competitions. The 1924 Paris Olympics are therefore known for their organization, innovation and significant increase in international participation.

Olympic Games 2024 Paris will host this year's XXXIII Summer Olympic Games, with the intention of becoming the most sustainable and eco-responsible games, giving importance to immersive experiences, with several participatory events for the public, taking place in the heart of Paris, making the most of the potential and historical significance of the city, so that the Champs Elysées will host cycling, Champs de Mars will host beach volleyball, the Seine River itself will be transformed into an Olympic swimming pool, triathlon events under the Eiffel Tower, skateboarding in the Place de la Concorde, tennis at Roland Garros, venues for various disciplines in Versailles, Les Invalides, Grand Palais, in the Arena Bercy... And at the same time sharing the development of the Games with venues all over France, reaching Marseille with sailing and even Tahiti with surfing. In Paris, a new Olympic sport, break dancing, will become an Olympic sport for the first time in history.

Fence 2 – Ambiance parisienne

The Parisian ambiance encapsulates the unique and distinctive essence of Paris, due to the city's rich history and culture, Parisian cafés are known for their cozy atmosphere and classic aesthetic, with wicker chairs and sidewalk tables that invite you to enjoy a coffee while watching life go by. Iconic establishments such as Café de Flore and Les Deux Magots in the Latin Quarter are emblematic of this tradition.

Bistros, on the other hand, are small, informal restaurants that serve homemade French cuisine. These places are known for offering traditional dishes such as cassoulet, coq au vin and bouillabaisse in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere. Many Parisian bistros have maintained their vintage charm and focus on the authenticity of the dining experience, making them popular spots for both locals and visitors looking to enjoy authentic French cuisine. The origin of the bistros' name lies in the invasion of the Place du Terre in Montmartre by the Cossacks in 1814, who came running to the establishments asking for alcohol. As they were not allowed to drink, they urged the waiter saying: 'bistro, bistro' which in Russian means: 'quick, quick', as they did not want to be caught by the officers with their elbows out during service hours.

The mythical café terraces with their chairs lined up in parallel, not part of the street furniture per se, but characteristic of the Parisian landscape, all placed in the same direction and facing the street, perfect for the Parisian sport of 'flâner'.

The chair is made of a rattan grill back combined with shapes and colors depending on the style of the brasserie. The tables, called bistro tables, usually have a central black iron leg and a round marble plate. The classic Thonet No.14 or 'bistro chair', made of wood with a slatted seat, was created in 1859 by the eponymous German furniture designer, following a unique technique of steam bending wood that required years of refinement. This design won a gold medal at the 1867 Paris World Exposition.

Over the years coffee became popular among the upper classes, as did chocolate, which created a demand that was met by the first coffee shop in Paris, which opened its doors in 1686 in the Saint-Germain-des-Prés district under the name of Le Procope. Although it was a Sicilian named Procopo, and not a Frenchman, who had the brilliant idea. Only a decade later, coffee shops had already multiplied by 200 throughout the city, thanks to the fact that coffee was more affordable than chocolate and that the middle class became addicted to it.

Fence 16 – Montgolfier

The best-known flights, considered as the origin of aerostation, are those of Montgolfier's in France, Joseph Michel and Jacques Etienne, who belonged to a dynasty of paper manufacturers from Annonay, south of Lyon. It has been reported that in 1782, when 42-year-old Joseph was in Annonay, south of Lyon, watching a woman's shirt float in the air by the action of a fire, he concluded that hot air lifted things up. Then, accompanied by his brother Etienne Jacques, 37, he proved that hot air or hydrogen were perfectly retained by a silk sheath. These principles had already been formulated 2000 years earlier in Syracuse by Archimedes, the inventor of incendiary bombs. According to Archimedes, a balloon or any other vehicle containing a substance lighter than air would rise until its weight was equal to the surrounding atmosphere.

King Louis XVI, fond of science and technical advances, demanded a demonstration at Versailles. It was scheduled for September 19, 1783. Jacques Montgolfier worked side by side with his friend Jean-Baptiste Réveillon, a paper manufacturer, on the design of a varnished taffeta balloon. In this model, the balloon had a wicker basket attached to it, which housed a sheep, a duck and a rooster. These animals were to be the first aeronauts. After three hours of inflation, the balloon lifted off with its cargo. After about ten minutes of flight and three kilometers of travel, it landed safely with its crew.

The only thing left to do was to take the risk of flying in a balloon. An ambitious and charismatic physicist, Jean-François Pilâtre de Rozier, proved to be cold-blooded enough to do so. On October 19, together with the Marquis François Laurent d'Arlandes, he climbed to 100 meters. Shortly after, they performed the feat again, this time in front of Louis XVI. After almost half an hour of flight and nearly ten kilometers of travel, at a maximum altitude of close to one thousand meters, they landed in Butte-aux-Cailles (today a suburb of Paris). The first flight manned by humans was a success.

The Montgolfier's made a public demonstration of their invention on June 4, 1783, on the outskirts of Annonay. They designed a paper-lined linen balloon, which they filled with more than six hundred cubic meters of hot air by burning wet straw and wool in braziers. It took eight men to hold the contraption, which was 11 meters in diameter. When it was released, it rose rapidly to an altitude of 1,800 meters. During the nearly ten minutes it remained in the sky, it moved nearly two kilometers.

Fence 7 – Tour Eiffel

The Eiffel Tower, an architectural masterpiece designed by Gustave Eiffel, is in the heart of Paris and is one of the most recognized icons in the world. It was built over a period of about two years for the Universal Exposition of 1889, celebrating the centenary of the French Revolution. The construction of the tower was initially full of controversy, received a multitude of criticisms, but quickly gained global appreciation and became a distinctive symbol of the City of Light.

The 324-meter-high iron lattice structure offers an unparalleled panoramic view of Paris from its three publicly accessible levels. Visitors from around the world ascend in elevators or take the stairs to enjoy the observation decks, each offering a unique perspective of the city, its iconic monuments, its wide boulevards and the Seine River meandering through the metropolis.

At night, it is spectacularly illuminated, the Eiffel Tower becomes a dazzling spectacle of flashing lights, adding a magical dimension to its visual impact. Not only is it a historical monument, but it also serves a practical function by housing transmission antennas and offers gastronomic experiences in its restaurants on the upper levels. With its timeless elegance and ability to evoke awe, the Eiffel Tower remains a magnet for lovers of architecture, history and the beauty of Paris.

The variable height of the Eiffel Tower should be contrasted every day, because depending on the temperature the Eiffel Tower measures a little more or a little less, as a metal structure that is, it experiences a reaction to temperatures that causes the steel to expand in summer and contract in winter. Gustave Eiffel designed it taking into account this phenomenon and calculated for it a ratio of 70 cm of oscillation (35 cm of expansion and 35 cm of contraction), a point that has never been reached, the maximum heights being: 18 centimeters of expansion during a heat wave in 1976 and 13 centimeters of contraction during a storm in 1999.

Fence 10bc – Metropolitan

The "Metropolitain" in France, commonly known as the Paris Metro, is a subway transportation system that has played a crucial role in the life of the French capital since its inauguration in 1900 during the Universal Exhibition. Between 1900 and 1912, 141 entrances designed by Hector Guimard, a pioneer of the Art Nouveau aesthetic, were installed and he transferred that aesthetic and elegance to the entrances, reintegrating organic forms in cast iron into functional objects, characterized by their 'dragonfly wings' and other ornaments such as the Dervaux lampposts.

With an extensive network covering the entire city and its suburbs, the Paris Metro has become one of the oldest and most efficient metro systems in the world. Its distinctive Art Nouveau design, with ornaments, mosaics and architectural details, present in many of its stations, gives it a unique charm that reflects the era of its construction. Today only two of the original entrances designed by Guimard remain, including the "Edicule" type metro entrance, with a fan-shaped glass canopy, resembling dragonfly wings, and the other type of entrance, the "encourage", with two stem-like prongs joined by a sinuous arch and each topped by a bright red sphere. Both entrances have been represented in the triple jump.

The iconographic metro logo, a circle with the word "Métro" inside, is internationally recognized, as is the numbering and color coding assigned to each line to facilitate passenger orientation.

About 80 examples are preserved with two different styles of entrance. That of canopies, of which only two are still in use: Porte Dauphine and the Abbesses entrance. And that of the iron balustrade structure decorated with plant motifs, such as the Louvre-Rivoli, Temple, Denfert-Rochereau or Château-d'Eau. The interior aesthetics have changed over time, initially the walls were covered with white biseauté tiles.

The Metropolitain is not a mere means of transport, it is part of the essence of the French capital, being a cultural and historical element that has contributed significantly to the identity of the city, has left an indelible mark on the culture and literature of Paris, being a frequent setting in films and literary works.

Fence 17 – Arc de Triomphe

The Arc de Triomphe is one of the most historically significant national monuments. Its construction began in 1806 by imperial decree of Napoleon Bonaparte, two years after declaring himself emperor of France in the Cathedral of Notre Dame and after his victory in the battle of Austerlitz in 1805, where he promised his men: "You will return home under triumphal arches".

Napoleon Bonaparte played an active role in the political and military affairs of France, and after the success of the French Revolution, in 1799 he took control of France and fought an excessive number of wars that have become known as the Napoleonic Wars.

He did not see it finished because its construction was stopped for twelve years due to Napoleon's abdication and was not completed until 1836, 15 years after his death. Although one of his dreams, to pass under the arch, was fulfilled, specifically in 1940, when his remains were transferred to the Palace of the Invalides, where they have rested ever since. are the 128 battles in which the French troops triumphed under Napoleon's command. this triumphal arch dedicated to perpetuate the memory of the victories of the French armies. It was designed by Jean Chalgrin and Jean- Arnaud Raymond, inspired by the Arch of Titus in Rome, and is 49 meters high, much higher than the Arch of Titus, which is 15 meters high and 45 meters wide. At its base, it presents four sculptural groups: The Entry of Napoleon, The Departure of the Volunteers, The Conquest of Alexandria and The Battle of Austerlitz. On the top of the monument are 30 coats of arms with the list of the main French victories, while its interior walls bear the names of 660 soldiers, including 558 generals.

In addition to those who fought in the Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars, the Arc de Triomphe also pays tribute to a man who fought in World War I, and unlike the former, his identity is not known at all. At its foot is the Tomb of the unknown soldier of World War I, with the inscription: ICI REPOSE UN SOLDAT FRANÇAIS MORT POUR LA PATRIE, 1914- 1918, "Here lies a French soldier killed for the Fatherland, 1914-1918" The unidentified man was buried here in 1920, to symbolize through the eternal flame, burning non-stop since 1923, the eternal gratitude of France for the unknown soldier, and for all those who fought and died in both world wars.

After World War I, Charles Godefroy passed under the arch with his war plane in 1919 as a symbolic and vindictive act to honor French pilots.

Term	Definition
Change of lead	The horse's movement as it transitions from a canter leading with the right fore, to a canter leading with the left fore, or vice versa, during the propulsion phase. This movement is observed in all equestrian disciplines.
Clear Round	When an athlete/horse combination completes a jumping course without knocking down any of the fences and without any refusals or putting a foot in the water, at the first attempt and within a set time.
Composite team	A three-member team from an NOC. The composite team will be selected according to the following process: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the respective rankings of each NOC's top three different athletes in the FEI Olympic ranking shall be added together to give an aggregate ranking; the NOC with the best aggregate ranking shall be awarded the redistributed quota place; in the event of a tie (i.e. where the aggregate rankings are the same), the redistributed quota place shall be awarded to the NOC with the highest ranked athlete on the FEI Olympic ranking. In the event of a further tie, the redistributed quota place shall be awarded to the NOC with the second highest ranked athlete on the FEI Olympic ranking, and so on. If the tie cannot be broken following this process, the FEI will invite the NOCs/NFs concerned to a draw.
Course designer	The mastermind of the Jumping and Eventing competition. The course designer is responsible for building the course and deciding on the layout of the various obstacles, based on the categories and level of the competition.
Course inspection	Also known as "reconnaissance", this is the moment before the jumping and cross-country competitions during which athletes can explore the course on foot to determine their trajectories, counting the strides between obstacles and inspecting them up close. This can also be referred to as "walking the course".
Cross Country	One of the three eventing tests, the other two being dressage and jumping. During this test, the athlete/horse combinations compete over fixed obstacles of various types, following a rugged, natural course that runs up and downhill.
Ditch	Cross country course obstacle in the form of a trench, over which the athlete/horse combination has to jump.
Downhill fence	Cross-country obstacle involving a sharply descending gradient, also known as a "downhill bank". If it is taken in the opposite direction, it is referred to as an "uphill bank." A sequence of two or three such obstacles is called a "step fence".
Double	Combination of two jumps placed within one to two strides of each other. See also: triple.
Dressage	A French term translated to mean "training", dressage is about cooperation and harmony between horse and athlete, performing a series of predetermined movements in an enclosed 20 x 60-metre arena. The athlete must perform the test from memory. The signals given to the horse by the athlete, also known as the aids, should be almost invisible so that the horse looks as though it is doing the movement by itself. The purpose of dressage is the development of the horse into a happy athlete through harmonious education. As a result, it makes the horse calm, supple, loose and flexible, but also confident, attentive and keen, thus achieving perfect understanding and partnership with the athlete.

Dressage letters	Letters placed around and outside the dressage arena fences on all four sides and in the middle (not marked), used to give athletes and judges reference points for the execution and judging of dressage figures as they are performed. Entry to the dressage arena is always at letter "A" and the President of the Ground Jury is placed outside the arena at "C".
Dressage marks	Marks are awarded for each movement during the test and range from a perfect 10 for excellent, to zero when the required movement is not executed. The scores from each of the seven judges are added together and the final mark is given as a percentage, with the highest percentage being the winner.
Elimination	As defined in the FEI general regulations, elimination means that an athlete and/or a horse may not continue in the competition at issue and/or in any further test(s) of the event, unless the sport rules provide otherwise.
Eventing	An eventing competition consists of three distinct tests during which an athlete rides the same horse throughout, namely: dressage, cross country and jumping. Tags: eventing
Fault (referred to as "Error" in dressage)	Any mistake during an athlete's round that will incur penalties or elimination. The definition of fault is discipline specific.
FEI certificate of capability	A certificate that must be provided by the national federation to the FEI for each athlete and horse that is nominated to participate in the Olympic Games. This certificate confirms that the minimum eligibility requirements as laid down in the FEI regulations for equestrian events at the Olympic Games have been obtained.
FEI Olympic ranking	The official rankings based on results achieved by an athlete and horse as a combination at the Olympic ranking events during the period 1 January 2023 - 31 December 2023.
Flying changes	A movement in dressage in which the horse is asked to change its "leading" leg during the canter, either every two strides or on every stride. There are also many single flying changes in each test.
Freestyle test	Dressage competition in which the athlete performs a test they have created themselves set to music for which they earn a technical and an artistic score. Certain movements are mandatory and must be included in the athlete's personal test.
Grand Prix	Dressage test consisting of mandatory figures, used as qualifier for the Team and Individual Finals at the Olympic Games. The Grand Prix is used to determine the team rankings in major international championships.
Grand Prix Special	A competition at the same level as the grand prix, but more focused on the transitions between the movements. In major international championships, it allows the ranking of the best athlete/horse pairs in the Grand Prix, so that only the top combinations are retained for the freestyle to music. It is a competition of the highest level, which brings out the horse's perfect lightness, characterised by the total absence of resistance and the complete development of collection and impulsion, which includes all the school paces and all the fundamental movements.
Ground Jury	A group of qualified officials who oversee the smooth running of every competition. The Ground Jury is responsible for signing off the final result(s) of the relevant competitions, unless specified otherwise in the discipline rules. They also deal with all protests in the first instance at an event.

Term	Definition
Half pass	Dressage movement in which the horse moves forward and sideways, crossing its legs. The outside foreleg slightly precedes the hind leg, and the neck and head are turned in the direction of movement.
Horse inspection	The horse inspection, is conducted by the Ground Jury and the Veterinary Delegate appointed for the competition to assess the horses fitness to compete in the context of international competitions and/or championships. Horse inspections are compulsory in the tree disciplines.
Horse number	The number assigned to the horse by the OC sorted by NOC and discipline.
Judges supervisory panel (JSP)	The judges' supervisory panel for an event is comprised of three members, ideally two dressage judges (Level 4/ 5 Star) and one international trainer. The objective of the JSP is to correct defined technical mistakes and counting errors. This ensures that the Ground Jury members can focus on judging the current movements knowing they are backed up if a mistake was made previously. The purpose of the JSP is to ensure fair judging and is compulsory for the Olympic Games.
Jumping	A jumping competition is one in which the athlete/horse combination is tested under various conditions over a course of obstacles. A jumping course is composed of "knockable" obstacles, some of which may be double or treble combinations, with penalties incurred for each obstacle knocked down, refused, or exceeding the time allowed. Jumping exists as a standalone discipline and as one of the three tests that make up an eventing competition.
Jump-off	In jumping competitions, if there is more than one combination tied for first place, finishing places are decided by a jump-off against the clock. If jumping penalties are the same over a shortened course, then the combination with the fastest time wins.
Knockdown	Penalty (four points) incurred when the athlete/horse push over the bar of an obstacle. For the penalty to be applied, the obstacle's overall structure must be affected. If a lower bar falls but neither the height nor the width of the obstacle is affected, no penalty is incurred.
Minimum eligibility requirements (MER)	Refers to the prerequisites and conditions that need to be fulfilled by the athlete/horse combination to be allowed to compete at a certain level of competitions or at a certain event. A MER is achieved by completing a competition within the minimum parameters and timeframes specified in the discipline rules.
Olympic ranking events	Events included in the FEI calendar of the required level at which points for the FEI Olympic rankings are given.
Optimum time	During the cross country phase of eventing, athletes have to complete the course within a set time, known as the optimum time. For each 0.4 of a second over the time, the athlete/horse combination will pick up one penalty.
Oxer	An oxer is a type of jump with two rails that may be set even or uneven. The width between the poles may vary.
Paces	The horse has three basic paces - walk, trot and canter - and dressage requires the execution of specified movements or exercises within these paces.
Passage	Dressage movement involving a short, collected, elevated, cadenced trot. It is distinguished by a brief but clear suspension between the moment the horse raises its two diagonally opposing legs and the moment it sets them down. Each diagonal pair of legs is raised and returned to the ground alternately, with cadence and a prolonged suspension.

Term	Definition
Penalty	A sanction imposed on an athlete as the result of a specific action considered to be a fault. (see Article 216 of the FEI rules for jumping).
Piaffe	Dressage movement consisting of a highly collected, elevated, rhythmical diagonal movement giving the impression of remaining in place. The horse's back is supple and elastic. Each diagonal pair of legs is raised and returned to the ground alternately, with spring and regularity.
Pirouette	This is a controlled 360-degree turn executed on the spot in canter. It requires immense concentration from both horse and athlete and great athleticism and strength from the horse.
Rail-ditch-rail combination	Cross-country obstacle consisting of a sequence of three jumps spaced between one and four strides apart and always including a ditch as the middle component. The horse jumps a set of rails, canters downhill to a ditch, then continues uphill to another jump.
Refusal	When an athlete/horse partnership does not jump an obstacle in a cross-country test or jumping competition, then this is referred to as a refusal. They have the option of returning and trying again. Depending on the discipline, athletes are eliminated after a specified number of refusals. See discipline specific rules for detailed descriptions.
Run-out	It is a run-out when: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the horse escapes the control of its athlete and avoids 1) an obstacle to jump, or 2) a compulsory turning point; • the horse fails to correctly jump an obstacle between a red flag on the right side and a white flag on the left side; • the horse or any part of the horse goes past the extended line of an obstacle to be jumped, or of an element of a combination, or of the finishing line or of a compulsory turning point.
Score	The result obtained by an athlete during their round, determined by adding the penalties for faults on obstacles and time penalties. Refer to discipline specific rules for details.
Triple	Combination of three jumps placed within one to two strides to each other. See also: double.
Vertical	A type of jump that consists of poles placed vertically one on top of another, with no spread or space between bars.
